FROM WASHINGTON.

[illegible] Report of the San Juan Quarrel—Illness of President Buchanan—Funeral of Capt. Fauna.

[Special Dispatch to the New-York Times.]

WASHINGTON, Friday, Nov. 11.

I learn that important dispatches have been received by the Government, with reference to the San Juan difficulty. In them Great Britain expresses an earnest desire to settle the difficulties which now exist amicably, and in a manner which shall give satisfaction to the United States. She has no doubt, moreover, that this will be accomplished. I understand that the tone of the dispatches is entirely respectful and friendly. The details of the settlement now proposed have not yet been made known, but it is believed that there is now no danger of any serious difficulty between the countries.

Senator DOUGLAS has the bilious fever, and not gout in the stomach, as previously reported. He has been growing ill this afternoon. Drs. MILLER and GARDNER are in attendance. Mrs. DOUGLAS is improving.

The funeral of Capt. FAUNA, U. S. N., took place to-day. Secretary TOUCEY and many of the naval officers attended the procession to the Congressional burying-ground.

[illegible] FOR THE LIBERALS—MARQUEZ DECLARES FOR SANTA ANNA AND SEIZES A $2,000,000 CONDUCTA—ZIRAMON ABANDONS THE CAPITAL.

NEW-ORLEANS, Friday, Nov. 11.

The steamship Tennessee, from Vera Cruz on the 5th inst., has arrived here. She brings $36,000 in specie.

The bark Rapid, from New-York, had arrived at Vera Cruz. A severe southerly gale of ten days' duration had detained many vessels.

The Liberal expedition against Tehuacan, Orizaba and Cordova proved a disastrous failure, Gen. MEJIA retreating without firing a gun, losing 600 men who were taken prisoners; also 1,000 muskets and 12 cannon, which Gen. MIRAMON captured without killing a man.

General MARQUEZ had pronounced for SANTA ANNA, after obtaining a conducta with $2,000,000 in specie, which he undertook to escort to Tuxpic. He appropriated $[illegible] to himself and detained the rest at Guanajuato. The British and French Ministers had vehemently protested against this conduct.

General ZIRAMON, against the wishes of his Cabinet, with only four aids, had left the capital, ostensibly to collect troops and pursue MARQUEZ as a traitor, but it was feared that he was really leagued with him. The Liberals were greatly encouraged thereby.

General TRESPALACIOS had defeated ALFORD, capturing his artillery, and entering Guanajuato with 5,000 men.

General WEBB was at Lagros, and General DEGOLLADO was pushing on to attack him.

A portion of the band of CANINAS had attacked the city of Rio Grande, pillaging nearly every house.

It was reported that the two bands of CANINAS numbered 700 men.

The people of Matamoras were in the greatest distress. All the mails were intercepted by the outlaws, and CANINAS had threatened to destroy the town, and cut off and murder all the reinforcements that might be sent on to the relief of the terror-stricken citizens.

From Bermuda.

YELLOW FEVER AT ST. THOMAS—WRECK OF AN AMERICAN BARK.

HALIFAX, Friday, Nov. 11.

The Bermuda mail steamer has arrived here.

The yellow fever was raging at St. Thomas.

The bark Antelope, from New-York to Barbados, was wrecked on Bermuda Reefs Oct. 17. Cargo nearly saved.

The brigantine Penguin, from New-York, arrived at Bermuda Oct. 29.

Jefferson and Utah.

ARRIVAL OF TREASURE AT LEAVENWORTH—THE ELECTION IN JEFFERSON—THE RESULT IN UTAH.

LEAVENWORTH, Friday, Nov. 11.

The Express from Denver, 3d inst., has arrived, with $43,000 in treasure.

B. D. WILLIAMS, Delegate elect from Jefferson, has also arrived. It is said his seat is to be contested by Dr. WILKES, for whom it is alleged over two thousand votes were cast, but were thrown out by the canvassers.

The election of Mr. BEAN for Governor is confirmed.

The Legislature would meet on the 7th inst.

The weather in the mountains was very fine.

The Utah mail of the 21st ult. has also reached here. There is no news of importance.

FAREWELL's majority for Delegate from Kansas will probably reach 2,000.

The Republicans have a majority in both branches of the Legislature.

From Massachusetts.

LIQUOR AGENT'S CASE—ARGUMENT UPON WRIT OF HABEAS CORPUS IN THE SUPREME COURT.

BOSTON, Friday, Nov. 11.

The full Bench of the Supreme Court was occupied several hours to-day in hearing arguments on a writ of habeas corpus in favor of BURNHAM, the State Liquor Agent, from jail. Judge SHAW will deliver the decision of the Court at 12 to-morrow. BURNHAM was remanded to the jail at the close of the hearing.

[illegible] DESTRUCTIVE FIRE.

BOSTON, Friday, Nov. 11.

The rolling mills and packing-room connected with the Fall River Iron Works at Fall River, were destroyed by fire this morning. The loss is estimated at $40,000, on which there is insurance only to the amount of $14,000, which is distributed in the following offices, namely: Firemen's Mutual, Providence, $2,000; State Mutual, Providence, $4,000; Liverpool and London, Boston agency, $4,000; Etna, Hartford, $4,000. From three hundred to four hundred workmen are thrown out of employment by this calamity.

The lucifer match factory of BURAM, CARLETON & Co., in Charlestown, was burned last night, together with all the stock. Loss about $5,000.

The repair shop of the Nashua and Lowell Railroad, located in Nashua, was destroyed by fire this morning. Loss, $10,000; insured, $3,000.

ADJOURNMENT OF THE REFORM CONVENTION.

TORONTO, C. W., Friday, Nov. 11.

The Reform Convention adjourned at noon today, after passing resolutions almost unanimously declaring the existing union between Upper and Lower Canada to have resulted in a heavy public debt, burdensome taxation; also, declaring for the dissolution of the present union between Upper and Lower Canada, with local governments for each section, and a central power for dealing with matters appertaining to both sections. About six hundred delegates were in attendance. The Convention was exceedingly harmonious.

A Murderer Hung.

ST. LOUIS, Friday, Nov. 11.

JOHN W. THOMSON, who shot Mr. JOSEPH CHAMBLIN on the street in June last, was hung this afternoon.

The Japan plum trees about New-Orleans are partly in bloom, and are [illegible] says, although this exquisite fruit, within only two or three years, became common in that vicinity, it promises to be one of the most profitable of the fruit-bearing trees. The first tree was introduced about 1850 from France.

VIRGINIA REBELLION.

THE CLOSE OF THE TRIALS.

Hazlitt to be Tried in May.

PUBLIC SENTIMENT IN VIRGINIA.

CHARLESTOWN, Friday, Nov. 11.

When the prisoners were brought out for sentence the negroes COPELAND and GREEN declined to say anything. COOK and COGER both addressed the Court, denying that they had any knowledge of BROWN's intention to seize the Ferry until the Sunday previous, when they were called upon to take the oath of obedience to their commander. They expected to be punished but did not think they should be hung.

HAZLITT will not be tried until the May term of the Court.

The negroes are to be hung on the morning of the 16th, and the whites during the afternoon of the same day.

THE FORBES DISCLOSURES.

An episode of some little interest in regard to the alleged revelations of the Harper's Ferry affair by Col. FORBES occurred yesterday. The Colonel has been vehemently accused by the Tribune and other journals of having betrayed the plans and movements of BROWN, and of having publicly thrown suspicion upon prominent Abolitionists and Republicans in connection with the affair. This he has always denied. He alleges that he was not a party to the original publication of his letters upon which these charges were based,—but that they were procured in some secret and surreptitious manner.

It seems that Col. F. returned from Kansas in December, 1857, and went to lodge at No. 767 Broadway, whence, it will be remembered, his letters to SANBORN and Dr. HEWS were dated. On his return from Washington, in the succeeding June, he lodged at the same place; about the middle of the month he departed, leaving behind him a debt of $120, and a trunk full of books, papers and private letters, among them being this correspondence concerning the intended invasion of the Slave States for the emancipation of their slaves.

Col. FORBES is now in Toronto: but yesterday afternoon his agent called at No. 767 Broadway to reclaim the trunk and its contents. The person who had possession of it declined to give it up except on payment of his debt. He had broken it open and examined the papers;—whether it was through his agency that they were made public did not clearly appear. An arrangement was made for the satisfaction of the debt, and the Colonel regained possession of his documents.

BROWN'S VOLUNTEER COUNSEL.

LETTER OF EXPLANATION FROM C. J. FAULKNER.

The article to which the subjoined letter replies appeared in the Philadelphia Inquirer of the 26th of October last, and contained the following extract:

"Mr. CHARLES J. FAULKNER was one of the lawyers assigned as counsel for the prisoners. He denied the right of the Court to assign counsel, and said that he could not enter upon the defence on such short notice, as it would, 'indeed, be a mockery of justice.' Mr. FAULKNER having said this, there can be no misinterpretation of our motives when we declare that we echo the opinion."

The following letter from Mr. FAULKNER not only affords a denial of the remarks therein attributed to him, but is a reply to the entire article:

BOYDVILLE, near Martinsburgh, Nov. 5, 1859.

DEAR SIR: Your favor of yesterday has been received, inclosing to me a copy of the Philadelphia Inquirer, containing nearly a column of comments upon a remark which the editor ascribes to me as having been made when I declined to act as counsel for JOHN BROWN and others, charged with treason, murder, and an attempt to excite to insurrection our slaves. No such remark ever fell from my lips. And it is a striking illustration of editorial license, that he should attribute any such language to me, in the face of the telegraphic report of my remarks contained in the same paper, embraced in an authentic account of the proceedings of the cause, and which contradict every idea that he imputes to me.

So far from having declined to act as counsel for the prisoners, because of the haste with which the examining Court was held, or because I believed the trial under the circumstances to be a mere mockery of justice, I feel free to say that I have never in the course of my life witnessed an examination which was entered upon and conducted with more deliberation and decorum, and with a more sacred regard to all the safeguards and requirements which the humane system of our criminal law throws around the life and liberty of the accused, than was extended to those wicked disturbers of our peace. And the reasons which the examining Court gave why they determined to assign me as counsel for the prisoners, but which I do not regard it proper for me to detail, would, if disclosed, be additional evidence of the determination of that tribunal to exercise the high responsibilities which devolved upon it, with the most scrupulous regard to the reputation of the Court, and to the honor and dignity of the State.

As the circumstances under which I was assigned by the Court as counsel have nowhere been fully stated, nor my reasons for declining to act on the trial, and as they have been the subject of some misrepresentation in one of the Baltimore Opposition papers, and you request, as a friend, to know them, I will state them to you with circumstantial precision.

My residence, as you are aware, is by railroad 26 miles from Charlestown, the place of trial, and about 17 miles across the country. I made a visit to that place on Monday, the 24th of last month, to attend to some chancery business, not intending to remain more than two days, and having, after that time, urgent and imperative engagements elsewhere. Shortly after the prisoners were conducted to the Court-house on Tuesday morning, to undergo their examinations preliminary to a regular trial, and while I was standing in the street, Mr. BOYD, and able and promising young lawyer of Charlestown, called upon me, and informed me that the examining Court had decided to assign me, in conjunction with himself, to act as counsel for the prisoners. I promptly expressed to Mr. BOYD my objections to the position. He told me the magistrates were all upon the bench, and that I had better go into the Court-house and see them. I did so, and in a private interview with the members of the Court, stated my objections to the position they proposed to assign me. My objections were overruled by the Court, and in a few moments afterwards I was, by the President of the Court, assigned to act in conjunction with Mr. BOYD in the defence of the prisoners. This preliminary examination was closed in a few hours, and the prisoners remanded to jail to await their regular trial before the Circuit Court, then in session at Charlestown.

In the evening of the same day Judge PARKER informed me that if the counsel expected from abroad did not arrive in time to act in behalf of the prisoners, that he would assign Mr. BOYD and myself to appear in their defence. This caused me to state to Judge PARKER, more at length than I had done to the examining Court, the reasons which rendered it inconvenient to me, and improper in itself for he Court to assign, or for me to accept, the position of counsel for the prisoners at their regular trial.

I stated to him that I was then upon a brief visit to the place, with urgent and imperative engagements elsewhere; that the prisoners would each ask, and be entitled to, separate trials, which would occupy some ten days or two weeks, and that I could not, without great inconvenience to myself, and disregard of existing engagements elsewhere, spend that time in the County of Jefferson; that I thought the duty should be devolved upon some of the resident members of the bar of Charlestown and its vicinity, among whom were to be found many able and experienced lawyers.

He referred to the fact that I had (under protest, however,) appeared as counsel and cross-examined the witnesses in the examining Court. I said that was true, but I had been assured that the examination would occupy but a few hours, and besides it was but a mere preliminary proceeding, involving none of the results and responsibilities of a regular trial—a proceeding very often waived by the prisoners themselves, and of no practical importance in view of their speedy trial; and that while I felt there was some objection to my appearing as counsel even in that preliminary examination, still the objections were not of so grave a character as they would be to my appearance in a trial involving the lives and liberties of the prisoners. I then stated to him the facts growing out of my antecedent relation to the transaction, which rendered it inexpedient and improper for the Court to assign me as counsel at the regular trial.

These facts were: that I, as one of the citizens of Virginia, had on Monday, with arms in my hands, repaired to the scene of the disturbance to aid in repelling the invasion, and the punishment of the perpetrators of this outrage upon our peace and security; that I had on Tuesday freely and publicly expressed my opinion of their guilt, and of the summary punishment which should follow their crimes; that on Wednesday I was engaged with Gov. WISE in the examination of witnesses, papers and other evidences of guilt found upon the persons or in the recent possession of the prisoners, and in advising the preliminary steps for the prosecution of the offenders; that I had heard from the lips of BROWN and STEVENS a full confession of their criminal acts, and criminal motives of action; and that, upon the basis of their own admissions, as well as what I had seen, I had freely and publicly expressed my opinion of their guilt, and of the just punishment that awaited their crimes; that my feelings and declarations would utterly disqualify me as a juror, and with my high estimate of the relation of counsel and client, they would equally disqualify me from acting as counsel for the prisoners.

Judge PARKER conceded that my objections were perfectly satisfactory and conclusive, and, with his full approval of my course, I left Charlestown in the cars on Wednesday morning before the bills of indictment were brought in by the Grand Jury.

The reasons given by the examining Court and by Judge PARKER why they desired to assign me the position of counsel, I shall not state; but they were honorable to the Court and Judge, and honorable to me. Very truly yours, CHAS. J. FAULKNER.

M. W. CLOSKEY, Esq., Washington City.

THE INSANITY OF GERRIT SMITH.

From the Albany Atlas and Argus, Nov. 11.

A gentleman who saw and conversed with GERRIT SMITH, shortly after the affair at Harper's Ferry, told us that he was insane—not merely excited by fear and agitated by the emotions which his complicity in the affair might produce, but mentally deranged. His eye was wild, and his appearance haggard, and his motions spasmodic and uncertain, but unceasingly restless.

He was in constant fear of being arrested and carried to Virginia—and suspected his friends of an intention to betray him into the hands of justice. When the cruel electioneering hoax was circulated that Gov. WISE had issued a requisition upon Gov. MORGAN for him as a fugitive from justice, he seems to have become so frantic that his friends saw no other hope than to send him to an asylum.

We make an extract from a private letter upon this subject, which gives some particulars of this sad end of a well-meant but misdirected career, fatal in its consequences alike to him and to all with whom he involved in his fanaticisms:

UTICA, Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1859.

MY DEAR SIR: GERRIT SMITH was brought to our Asylum yesterday, and is quite deranged intellectually as well as morally; and he is also feeble physically. He refused to take an anodyne, alleging that they only wanted to put him to sleep for the purpose of boxing him up and taking him to Virginia. When informed that he must take it, voluntarily or by compulsion, he opened the door and screamed (into the hall) "I protest!" He then took it. I deem his madness a sign of the times. He is a victim to the excitement which he helped to make general, and which, in various degrees, is now pervading all the Free States. It is much akin to the excitement against witches that prevailed at Salem and other parts of New-England, and the time will come when our descendants will look back at it as we look back on the doings in Salem. I am not sure but that the Harper's Ferry outbreak will intensify the excitement.

REVERSION OF OPINION IN VIRGINIA.

STATE OF FEELING IN THE "TENTH LEGION" ON THE HARPER'S FERRY INSURRECTION—DISUNION IMMINENT—ENSLAVEMENT OF THE FREE NEGROES—EFFORTS TO DIRECT THE CURRENT OF SOUTHERN TRADE FROM THE NORTH—A SOUTHERN CONVENTION—VOLUNTEER COMPANIES, &c., &c.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

WOODSTOCK, Shenandoah Co., Va., Wednesday, Nov. 9th, 1859.

Four months ago, when I visited this place, I had supposed that no state of things could have wrought such a change in public sentiment as I now witness here. This is the heart of the celebrated "Tenth Legion," which is composed of the counties of Page, Shenandoah and Rockingham. The celebrity of this section, as the great stronghold of democracy in Virginia, is co-extensive with the Union itself, while the conservatism of its people is no less a matter of notoriety. The inhabitants of the "Tenth Legion" consist chiefly of Germans, persons of German descent, but few of whom are slaveholders. They have always, however, displayed a proper interest in maintaining the institution of slavery, but were at no time influenced to any extreme resorts through the protracted agitation which grew out of that subject. Least of all have they been stimulated to anything like disunion under the influences of the slavery agitation. The sentiment of the "Tenth Legion" is generally that of the legislative branch of the State government. Its moral influences in the State councils may be deemed proportionate to its great democratic strength, which is in a ratio of about 75 per cent. to the aggregate democratic majority of the State. The conservatism of Virginia in the past is due in no small degree to the coolness and moderation which has always characterized the "Tenth Legion." No extremist could command its vote, and without it democracy could not triumph. To meet the views of this section, therefore, it was a matter of necessity to make a selection of candidates with special reference to the conservative views of the "Tenth Legion."

This conservatism no longer exists. The Harper's Ferry insurrection has changed it into rank ultraism. The policy of disunion is as warmly advocated now in this section as it was condemned four months ago; and, so far as I can observe, this sentiment will be fully reflected in the Legislature next Winter, by every member from the counties composing the "Tenth Legion." In such an event, we may look for measures which will surpass in their extreme character any ever before dreamed of in Virginia. The "Tenth Legion" has always operated as the balance-wheel in the political machinery of the Commonwealth, and that once destroyed, there is every reason to apprehend evil consequences. I have heretofore been incredulous as to the threats of disunion which I heard so often made; but, after the display of feeling which I have witnessed here during the session of the County Court—an occasion which brings together all the principal men of the County—I confess my incredulity has been considerably modified. If the standard of disunion were raised to-morrow, I question if there are a thousand men in Virginia who would not rally to it. This is a safe estimate, assuming the state of feeling in the "Tenth Legion" as the index of the popular sentiment of the Commonwealth. And this may be safely assumed as a standard of judgment—for, when all were ultraists, the "Tenth Legion" was cool, moderate and conservative. I have not met one man during my stay here who is not a friend of disunion. This town is not more than forty or fifty miles from Harper's Ferry; and, no doubt, the sense of danger resulting from this proximity to the scene of the insurrection aggravates the feeling of hostility to the North, and tends to produce a greater degree of excitement than would follow a similar occurrence at a more remote point.

The enslavement of the free negroes of the Commonwealth is a measure which seems to be very popular in this region. The policy in this connection which is most favored here, is the immediate enslavement of that class, so as to avoid a diminution of the representative basis which would result from the exodus of the free negro population under a measure granting the alternative of emigration or enslavement, within a specific time. Slaves constitute a basis of representation in the ratio of three-fifths, while free negroes rank with the whites in this connection, so that the loss of a free negro would be equivalent to the loss of a white man as a representative basis. Their enslavement, however, would involve but a comparatively small diminution in this respect, for in this condition they would occupy the three-fifths standard, and probably save to the Commonwealth the loss of one member of Congress, which would be inevitable under the policy of voluntary emigration or enslavement after the lapse of a certain period. Immediate enslavement would, moreover, add to the coffers of the State Treasury; but I hardly suppose that any such consideration as this would weigh materially in the determination of this policy. A regard for the safety of the institution of Slavery, with which the existence of free negroes in the Commonwealth is deemed incompatible, is the overruling motive for this contemplated change. The question of the basis of representation can only affect the details of the measure as regards the limits within which the alternative of emigration or enslavement may be granted. But the question of gain is, I am sure, altogether excluded in the consideration of this policy.

Another effect of the Harper's Ferry émeute is the stimulus which it seems to give to the efforts of the people South to establish commercial independence. One of the largest traders of this town informed me that, under no circumstance, would he purchase goods of any Southern merchant who would not import direct from Europe. Heretofore, he was in the habit of making his purchases at the North, but having been assured that a large dry goods house in Richmond made direct importations from Europe, he transferred his custom to that firm, and shall continue it there only so long as they pursue this system of direct trade. This feeling is actually becoming universal. The merchant here who guarantees that his goods have been imported direct from Europe through other than Northern hands, will command the best trade, and receive the highest praises. No man could imagine that such a change in the public feeling here in regard to the North, as seems to have taken place within four months past, could accrue in an age. And when such a state of things exists in a region like this, always proverbial for its moderation and conservatism, what can be the state of feeling further South, where altitude and hatred of the North has been the normal condition of society? What a pity that a few Northern fanatics should be permitted thus to embitter the mutual good feeling which would otherwise exist between the two sections of the Confederacy. It is to be feared the North is too incredulous in regard to the disunion threats of this section, and under that feeling may be led to perpetrate other outrages. I would say, candidly and sincerely, as the result of some experience of the true state of feeling in Virginia, that a crisis is very near at hand, and that nothing can arrest it save a discontinuance by the Abolitionists of the aggressive and unwarranted policy which they have been pursuing hitherto. It is idle to suppose that the South will tolerate much more. Any idea to the contrary, if it should encourage still further aggression, would prove the ruin of this country. The Harper's Ferry insurrection has done more to expedite the crisis of disunion, if it shall come, than would fifty years of agitation. It is well, therefore, that the Union-loving citizens of the North would reflect seriously upon the danger, and avert this disaster.

I am informed that it is seriously contemplated to call a Convention of the leading men of the several Southern States, to consider what is the best course to pursue in this crisis. Some would have it that it is a Disunion Convention, called for the purpose of arranging the preliminaries for a Southern Confederacy. Others attribute to it a purpose of determining what the policy of the South shall be on the subject of the Presidency, and whether the South shall run an independent candidate in the event of DOUGLAS' nomination. Several correspondences have passed between prominent men on the subject of this Convention; but its actual object has not transpired. Conjecture attributes to it the purposes to which I have referred. The Southern people, so far as I can see and ascertain, are prepared for any extreme measure that may be initiated.

Volunteer companies are being organized in every town and village in this section. The population is rife for every movement of this character, and the very atmosphere smells of civil war.

This is a handsome little town of about fourteen hundred inhabitants. It is connected with Alexandria by the Manassas Gap Railroad, and is situated in one of the most beautiful valleys in the country. Everything betokens a high degree of prosperity, and as the Railroad stretches on towards Harrisonburgh, Rockingham County, which is to be the terminus at present contemplated, the resources—mineral and agricultural—of this vast region, are being rapidly developed.

SEAMEN'S CONVENTION.

Convention of the Chaplains and other Friends of Seamen—Third and Last Day.

The Convention was opened by the singing of a hymn.

Capt. H. A. CURTIS then rose and announced to the Convention that news had been received of the loss of the ship Charles Thomas, from Liverpool to Mobile, and that the whole crew had perished. Mr. CURTIS asked the prayers of the Convention for the men of the sea.

A solemn and impressive prayer was then offered by Rev. Dr. MASON.

Resolutions were then offered by Rev. HARMON LEWIS, Secretary of the Seamen's Friend Society, recommending that a shipping office be opened in this City, having for its object the abolition of the advance wages' system.

The resolution was adopted.

Rev. CHARLES H. PLUMMER, of Providence, R. I., moved that a Committee be appointed to take into consideration measures for preparing a full history of this Convention, to be published in a pamphlet form. Also an address to the public on the moral condition of seamen. Rev. CHARLES J. JONES, Rev. HARMON LEWIS and Rev. C. H. DENISON were appointed as the Committee.

A resolution was offered by Mr. JONES that the Convention should join in expressions of regret for the illness of Rev. Mr. RIPLEY, pastor of the Mariner's Church, Philadelphia, whose serious illness, resulting from his exertions in the cause of seamen, prevented his attendance at the Convention. It was adopted; and it was agreed that a copy of the resolution be sent to his family.

The next resolution offered was as follows:

Resolved, That we have heard with interest of the schools now being adopted in Baltimore, Md., and which are now under discussion in Massachusetts and New-York, to provide suitable schools in ships for boys, with a view to their being educated and qualified to serve on shipboard, thereby furnishing our commerce, as far as such means will do it, with a class of able seamen.

Capt. CURTIS said that several merchants and others, friends of seamen, were in favor of purchasing the ship Prometheus for this purpose. Mr. CURTIS thought that a system of this kind would save many poor boys who were now roaming about the streets, and would also be the means of providing our service with better men. The resolution was adopted.

The Rev. CHAS. J. JONES reported from the business Committee the following:

Resolved, That we regard well-conducted sailors' homes, and good temperance boarding-houses, as among the best instrumentalities that can be employed for the successful advancement of reform among seamen; that they are worthy of the confidence and support of our merchants, shipmasters, underwriters and citizens generally, inasmuch as their good moral influence insures the promotion of temperance, virtue, integrity, and obedience among seamen, and thereby promote the permanent welfare of commerce, as well as powerfully aiding in the advancement of practical Christianity.

The resolution was adopted.

Another resolution directing a registry book to be kept, in which the names of seamen, their place of birth, and other particulars concerning them, would be registered. Rev. Mr. JONES strongly advocared the preparing of such a book. He was continually receiving letters from friends of seamen in England, Wales, Ireland, Denmark, Sweden and other places, asking for information concerning seamen. Mr. W. D. HARRIS also favored this suggestion.

There was then an interesting discussion as to the expediency of having another National Convention next year, to be held in the City of Boston. The time for adjournment having arrived, the Convention dispersed to meet again at 2 o'clock.

At the afternoon session, Mr. DENISON read an interesting letter from Rev. O. G. HEADSTROM, pastor of the Bethel Ship, Pier No. 11 North River, in which it was stated that hundreds and thousands of seamen were converted through the means of these Bethels, and that they were in a great measure the cause of the great revival which recently took place in Sweden and Norway. Many of those converted had become masters and merchants, and a case of drunkenness among Scandinavians was rare.

Rev. CHAS. S. DENISON, CHAS. S. JONES, and Mr. GEORGE W. PETTIT, and others, were appointed a committee to prepare religious songs for seamen.

The next resolution was as follows:

Resolved, That in view of the evil influence exerted by the employment in commerce of persons disqualified for their positions, this Convention respectfully inquire of the gentlemen composing the Board of Underwriters of this country, if they will consider the expediency of the establishment of a permanent commission for the examination of the qualifications of officers and seamen, and if they think proper, to authorize such commission to issue certificates of qualification.

Rev. Mr. JONES made a practical speech, in which he strongly advocated the adoption of the resolution. In England a sailor's qualifications were strictly inquired into. A man who could show a certificate of good character procured a ship at once, but the bad and indifferent seamen were obliged to come to this country, where by paying a dollar he would procure a protection as a good and able-bodied seaman, when he was neither the one nor the other. Thus we had here the offscourings of other countries.

The resolution was adopted, and referred to a committee of three, to confer with the American Seamen's Friend Society.

Rev. D. P. BOGGS, of Virginia, offered a resolution on Sabbath Schools, which was adopted.

After an interesting discussion on the cruelties practiced at sea, D. SNODGRASS then presented the following:

Resolved, That we hail with joy the motion of Mr. MILNES, in the British Parliament, in favor of some international arrangement under which British and American seamen, respectively, shall have a prompter and surer protection against the cruelties of captains and other officers than the separate and independent action of the British and American courts affords them; and that we shall hope to see our own national authorities prompt to negotiate for an object at once so urgent and merciful as that proposed.

Capt. RICHARDSON then rose and stated the extreme difficulty of getting sick sailors into the Hospitals in port. No sailor could now get in unless he could prove that he had paid hospital dues. This he ascribed to the strict rule of the Secretary of the Treasury, upon which the following resolution was proposed by Capt. RICHARDSON:

Resolved, That the members of this Convention have long been painfully impressed with the difficulties connected with the introduction of seamen into hospitals, and we now express the hope that the friends of seamen will inquire into these abuses, and do all in their power to mitigate the evils that exist in this regard among our brethren of the sea.

This was adopted, and the Secretary of the Convention was instructed to communicate with the Secretary of the Treasury upon the subject.

The Convention offered a resolution thanking the President, Mr. JOHN GRAMERCY, for the dignified and impartial manner in which he had presided over their deliberations. The President then made some very interesting remarks congratulating the Convention on the great harmony which had prevailed during their deliberations, and particularly remarking upon the importance of the subjects discussed.

After prayer by Rev. Mr. BOGGS, of Virginia, and Capt. BARNEY, of Massachusetts, the Convention adjourned to meet again next year on the call of the Committee appointed for that purpose.

MAP ILLUSTRATING THE SAN JUAN DISPUTE.

The map given above, reduced from the large map of the Coast Survey, exhibits the nature of the controversy pending between our Government and that of Great Britain, concerning the ownership of the Island of San Juan. The upper border of the map is the boundary line, on the parallel of 49°, adopted across the Continent to the middle of the channel between the Continent and Vancouver's Island. At that point it turns a sharp angle to the southeast, and proceeds, according to the English claim, by the dotted line through the Strait of Rosario, near the main land, but, according to the American claim, through the Haro channel, which runs along the coast of Vancouver's Island. Quite recently the English claim has been modified, and it is now represented that the line should run directly north and south through the middle of the whole interval which separates the Continent from Vancouver's Island. Their original claim, however, was for the Strait of Rosario.

An American officer, familiar with the whole region, has handed us the following concise statement of the basis of our claim:

1. The treaty provides that the boundary shall run "westward along the said forty-ninth parallel of north latitude to the middle of the channel which separates the continent from Vancouver's Island, and thence southerly through the middle of the said channel, and of Fuca's Straits, to the Pacific Ocean." A glance at the map will show that the Canal De Haro (near Vancouver's Island) is the natural channel and outlet. A vessel coming through the centre of the Gulf of Georgia, from above the 49th parallel, desiring to go to the Pacific Ocean, would move through the Canal De Haro, as going at once southerly and nearest to Vancouver's Island. There is more reason for our claiming Saturna Island, west of the Canal De Haro, than for the British to claim the Archipelago De Haro, as a good ship channel exists west of said island.

2. It is the widest, shortest and deepest channel. The main body of water runs through it. Examine the large Coast Survey Map, published in 1854, of those waters, with all the soundings, and you will notice in the Canal De Haro 30 fathoms and no bottom, 75 and no bottom, 150 and no bottom, throughout the whole of it. Whereas in the Straits of Rosario, near Lummi Island, you will see 7¾ and 10 fathoms. No such soundings are found on the other channel. The general width of the former is nearly twice that of the latter, and it is shorter by at least 17 miles. We notice that Capt. ALDEN, of the Navy, on this Chart, acknowledges that a large share of these soundings in the Canal De Haro are derived from those of Capt. WILKES, of the United States Navy, made on his exploring expedition in 1842 and 1843, some large years before the treaty was negotiated. We give the date, as some whimsy in the London paper alleges that the Canal De Haro had never been navigated by anything larger than a canoe at the date of the treaty.

3. The boundary by the Rosario Straits would be roundabout, unnatural, grotesque, as if a freak had been purposely made to hug the continent and take everything into John Bull's lap.

4. Under the laws of nations the islands are the natural appendage of the continent, and not of Vancouver's Island. This idea is acted upon by the British Parliament in its recent legislation. It provides that the colony of Vancouver's Island can, by the consent of its legislature, be merged in the colony of British Columbia.

5. The laws of Oregon Territory, before Washington Territory was organized, were extended over those islands as "Island County," and before the Hudson Bay Company had any shadow pretension on San Juan Island. Not until 1853 did that Company make their settlement on said island. It is believed that the whole claim is an after-thought of the Hudson Bay Company.

6. Hon. LEWIS MCLANE, our Minister to England, wrote to the Secretary of State on the 18th May, 1846, one month before the treaty was signed at Washington City, that the basis of a settlement of the territory could be made on "the 49th parallel to the sea, and thence through the Canal De Haro to the Straits of Fuca, to the ocean."

7. The understanding of the Senate which ratified the treaty was to the same effect. The opinions of Mr. BUCHANAN and Mr. CASS, and of others, mention explicitly the Canal De Haro as the boundary.

8. It was the general understanding throughout the whole country that only Vancouver's Island was yielded to Great Britain.

With great reluctance did the Government and the people come down from 54° 40' to the 49th parallel.

The following extract of a letter from an officer of the Army, gives further information of considerable interest in the same connection:

"The archipelago of islands exhibited on the chart, and claimed by the United States, particularly that of San Juan, which I visited with the General on the 4th of July last, is very desirable, not only for its excellent and safe harbor, but its fine farms and abundance of wood and water. As the London Times says, it is the 'Crosstaff' of the waters on the Sound. And in fact the whole of Puget's Sound, from the 49th parallel, North latitude, up to Olympia, is the finest body of water in the world. For ships of every size and draft of water, good anchorage and excellent harbors can be found in every part of the Sound. It also abounds in the finest forests of timber. Large ships from England and France are here every year for spars to supply their navy and merchantmen; and for seven years in the past I will venture to say it cannot be surpassed for its climate."

THE ELECTIONS.

The Vote of New-York—Leavenworth still Fifteen Hundred Ahead—The Vote in New-Jersey—Maryland.

The event of the contest in New-York is still undecided. We give a table of results as received and conjectured at Albany, corrected by later returns received up to the hour we go to press; and we thus find Gen. LEAVENWORTH apparently 1,484 ahead of Mr. JONES, in the contest for the Secretaryship of State. There is little risk, perhaps, in hazarding the conjecture that the chances of the hour are in favor of the Utica candidate. The Albany Journal says:

We still hope for the election of our entire State Ticket; but it would be presumptuous to set up any such claims when the change of a few votes in each county might change the whole result, on a portion of the Ticket.

JUDGE KEMP REFUSES HIS COMMISSION, HOLDING THE ELECTION INVALID.

BALTIMORE, Friday, Nov. 11.

It is announced that Judge KEMP, of the Orphan's Court, who was on both the American and Reform tickets at the recent election, has written a letter to the Governor declining to accept his commission on the ground that the election was so vitiated by force and fraud as to afford no test whatever of the popular choice.

Miss Maria Stafford of Fabius, recently brought an action before the Circuit Court at Syracuse, against Wm. Hartley, for breach of promise. The j

MRS. STOWE'S NEW NOVEL.

An English Review of "The Minister's Wooing," by Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe.

From the London Saturday Review.

We have never thought very highly of the special gift which appears to belong to particular writers, of obtaining what the French call a "mad success." The books which are read in every family and sold on every book-stall, which furnish popular platform speakers with half their arguments and all their illustrations, and which convert the Archbishop of Canterbury into the friend of the Quaker, have very seldom, we think, any substance; or, if they have, it is not to their substance, but to their popular defects, that the rage for them is owing. The reason of this is probably this: the region of the mind to which such books address themselves is that which lies uppermost, and which has least permanence about it. In such a case, thousands of amiable and communicative people are ready to say, "My own sentiments, I have expressed them and as they like to get an excuse to talk about their sentiments, they find one in reading the book and the authors by whose mouth their wish has been humored. It is not, however, by standing on the same level with the rest of mankind, and repeating their transient commonplaces in a pigeon and dashing style, that lasting reputations are won, or works of permanent importance completed. An author who looks for money and popularity must be, to some extent, in advance of his neighbors. Indeed, he is bound to be so if he is not, for it is his business to think and think to act; so that, if his thoughts are better worth having than theirs, he must be capable of thinking to any purpose. A real work, which is not to be understood at a moment's notice, will grow upon the world, and educate the taste of the public at large to appreciate its beauties. It will thus have a sounder and more lasting popularity in a few years after its production than it had at first.

For these reasons we never felt much sympathy for the extraordinary admiration which Uncle Tom's Cabin excited here and in America; nor have we felt the least surprise at the fact that its popularity, like that of any other party pamphlet, has been as short-lived as it was extensive. The coarseness and vice which ran down from Uncle Tom to Eva and Legree, always made us revolt against the book, and the same result was produced even more strongly by the egregious and ridiculous injustice which always attends the ex-parte picture of adversaries. The fact that Mrs. Stowe could describe the flogging to death of an old black in an affecting manner proved nothing whatever as to the general character and results of Slavery. Mr. Olmsted's Travels were as much evidence to Uncle Tom in real importance, as evidence upon the subject of Slavery, as they were inferior in accidental importance. To excite the prejudice of a well-dressed mob against an abuse very generally acknowledged to be one, may be occasionally useful, but is always in a very high degree unjustifiable. To use novels as weapons of war, or sermons is like giving foul blows in boxing. You may disable your antagonist, but you degrade yourself, and doubly degrade the supporters you applaud you.

The Minister's Wooing gives a very fair specimen of Mrs. Stowe's real intrinsic power when she is not writing as a partisan, and it shows clearly enough that the impression which she made by her first book was due far more to the speaking-trumpet than to the voice. The story is intended to illustrate the manners and character of the New-Englanders of the generation which achieved the Independence of America, especially in reference to that Puritanical leaven which was so deeply worked into their characters. Two, at least, of the persons introduced are alleged to be historical characters. They are Colonel Aaron Burr, who was well known in the American politics at the beginning of the present century, and a certain Dr. Hopkins, whom Mrs. Stowe speaks of with profound reverence as the author of theological books of a very singular character, and which, as we understand her, are still popular amongst certain sections of the inhabitants of New-England. The story itself is a mere amplification of the oldest of all the commonplaces of fiction. Dr. Hopkins lives in the house of a certain Widow Scudder, who has a very pretty and pious daughter. The daughter is in love with a rather wild young cousin. The cousin—a sailor—goes to sea, and is supposed to be lost. On the supposition of his death, the girl is about to be married to Dr. Hopkins; but at the critical moment the sailor comes to life again. Dr. Hopkins absolves his bride from her engagement, and James and Mary marry, and live happily ever after.

The real point of the book, as far as it has one, is, that it claims to give a picture of the practical results of extreme Puritanism in active life; and in this point of view it has a certain interest, though not, we think, a very healthy one. The chief figure of the book is Dr. Hopkins, the divine, and its most remarkable feature consists in descriptions of the way in which his teaching practically affected various classes of hearers. The character of his doctrine is tersely stated by Mrs. Stowe, as follows:

"According to my views then entertained of the evidences of a true regeneration, the number of the whole human race who could be supposed as yet to have received this grace was so small that, as to any numerical valuation, it must have been expressed by an infinitesimal. Dr. Hopkins in many places distinctly recognizes the fact that the greater part of the human race up to his time had been eternally lost, and boldly assumes the ground that this amount of sin and suffering, being the best and most necessary means of the greatest final amount of happiness, was not merely permitted, but distinctly chosen, desired, and provided for, as essential in the schemes of Infinite Benevolence. He held that this decree not only permitted each individual act of sin, but also took measures to make it certain, though, by an exercise of infinite skill, it accomplished this result without violating human free agency. * * Dr. Hopkins boldly asserts that all the race which God will have for them (the damned) is to suffer. This is all the end they can answer; therefore, all their faculties, and their whole capacities, will be employed and used for this end, and for no other." The body can by Omnipotence be made capable of suffering the greatest imaginable pain, without producing dissolution, or abating the least degree of life or sensibility. * * * One way in which God will show his power in the punishment of the wicked will be in strengthening and upholding their bodies and souls in torments which would otherwise be intolerable."

It was one principal evidence of a regenerate disposition to be able to acquiesce in this as the best possible arrangement.

The men who preached these doctrines were eminent (Mrs. Stowe says) for their holiness and virtue, and were so far from being insensible to the horror of what they preached that their lives were bowed down and burdened by the intolerable agony of believing their own theories. Their doctrines, she says, exercised such an influence over the minds of the society in which they lived that they were the common subject of discussion by all classes of men and women on all occasions. The farmers talked them over at their work, their wives at the tea-table, and their servants at the spinning-wheel. The Minister's Wooing aims at relating this, and, accordingly, we have portraits of members of all sorts of classes under the pressure of Dr. Hopkins' theory of what he called disinterested benevolence. The tender, pious, sensible girl who has lost her lover—the imaginative mother who has lost her son—the shrewd, clever, managing widow who looks after her own and her daughter's salvation with the same keenness as she shows in managing her house—the weak little farmer, who, whilst a pattern of every form of self-denying virtue, passes through the world groaning and trembling because he cannot come up to his minister's standard—his fat, sleepy wife, who rather enjoys being harrowed up into a momentary excitement—and his high-spirited daughter, who accepts her position as one of the wicked, and makes the best of it as cheerfully as she can—are all depicted in turn with considerable skill, as illustrations of the effects which the very highest form of High Calvinism would produce upon different specimens of the New-England race.

[illegible] that she could not have drawn a picture of New-England life as it was without giving the Calvinistic theology its due prominence. The conclusion we arrive at is that she should have held her pen altogether. There really are some subjects which are quite dreadful for novelists, strange as such a statement may appear. Of the many gross outrages which have been perpetrated by novelists, some was as gross as M. Dumas's profanation of the history of the Crucifixion in his romance of the Rebellion. But though there is a difference in degree, and perhaps a difference in execution, the principle of The Minister's Wooing is precisely the same as that of Dr. Hopkins' sermons. It has seemed to us to be a normal truth, to which we have scarcely found an exception, that human sympathy is weaker than the sense of duty. Dr. Hopkins appeals to the sense of duty, and he succeeds in making his theology appear to Christians to be right, and a justification of God to be a duty. Mrs. Stowe appeals to sympathy, and fails to convince. Her book, to include in the foregoing illustration, is like a sermon in which the preacher, with the best intentions, has so worked upon his own sympathies with the sufferings of the damned, that he has ended by half persuading himself that the doctrine is false, because it is so terrible. We do not, we believe, do Mrs. Stowe any injustice in supposing that she wrote her book with the intention of inculcating the duty of submission to the Divine Will, and of showing how the most terrible doctrines may be made the means of exercising the most heroic virtues. We do not, we believe, do her any injustice in supposing that she has failed in her purpose, and that her book will be read by a large class of persons who will be more shocked than edified by it. The fault, we think, is in the attempt to make the reader realize the sufferings of the damned. The effort to realize them is painful, and, when it succeeds, it is so painful that it ceases to be a moral lesson, and becomes a mere horror. The mind shrinks from it, and, if it does not succeed in shutting it out, it ceases to be a moral agent, and becomes a mere sufferer. The effect of the book, on the minds of those who are capable of realizing the sufferings of the damned, will be, we fear, to make them sympathize with the victims of Dr. Hopkins's theology, and to make them feel that, if they are to be saved, they must be saved in spite of the Divine Will. The effect of the book on those who are incapable of realizing the sufferings of the damned will be to make them feel that the Divine Will is a very proper subject for criticism, and

LAW REPORTS.

THE WATERGATE LANE COMMISSIONERS.

Application Before the New-York Supreme Court.

In Chambers, yesterday, Judge Davies being absent, the motion made by a company, interested for the Waterville Railroad, to enjoin the Commissioners of Estimate and Assessment, appointed by the Common Council, from proceeding with the assessment of Jno. Watergate, Esq., for the alleged combination with Jno. Tyler, Esq., in the attempt to destroy the Watergate property, in the Southern Boulevard, in the City of New-York, and for obtaining a decree in the United States District Court for the District of Texas, in the case of Thomas Bell, with Stillman, and other defendants, and for fraud of the defendants in divesting, and for obtaining title to the Brownsville (Texas) property, and for attempting to destroy the rights of Jno. Watergate, by a false and fraudulent conveyance, and for obtaining a decree in the United States District Court for the District of Texas, in the case of Thomas Bell, with Stillman, and other defendants, and for fraud, by combination and other fraudulent acts and conveyances. The defendant, Charles Stillman, who is a citizen of New-York, was subpoenaed as a witness at the plaintiff's instance. Upon the examination of a party before trial, but on his examination he stated he was unable to give testimony, possibly the settlement of these transactions, by the Judge, he (defendant) applied for leave to go to Brownsville to attend to his interests there in the present troubled and excitement on the Texas border. The application was made on affidavit stating these troubles, &c., and was opposed by plaintiff, who interposed a long affidavit setting forth the diligence with which they had prosecuted this examination, and the difficulties which had been encountered in its progress. The matter was argued at Chambers by Mr. Bradley for defendants, and Mr. Johnston for plaintiff—on whose part it was insisted that the witness should not be allowed to leave the jurisdiction of the Court until he had answered the questions to which he had refused to respond, and which might be considered to be most material part of the examination. It was stated, in the course of counsel that the witness, so far as it had appeared, was shot in the City office about the middle of October last; and the exception which the witness had refused to answer involved transactions of, until this application, long before for the witness to absent himself until the Term of the Court. It was stated in the plaintiff's affidavit that he had been anxious and ready to have these exceptions disposed of, and the examination to proceed, and had urged the matter at every opportunity, and the attorney who had been retained by the witness on their behalf. On the 7th inst. an order was made for the resumption of the examination, and directing that if proceed forthwith, in default of obtaining the plaintiff's counsel adjourning the following notice to the defendant's counsel, desiring to proceed at once, and offering to take the testimony of the witness under any circumstances as to place, hour of the day, &c.

Supreme Court—Jno. Muscho and another vs. Chas. Stillman, &c.

Jno. C. Gilbert, Esq.—New-York, Nov. 7, 1859.—We are ready to proceed with the examination of Mr. Stillman, according to the order of the Court made this day, and Mr. Pollard is making all the arrangements as to time, place and other matters relating thereto. We will proceed now before Judge Bayley and continue the examination; or, if it be your wish, we will meet you at the Court room, on the hour of eight. But we desire to proceed at once. If you cannot proceed now, will you have the goodness to name a day or hour to-morrow, when you can proceed? We are the place in the room of the Supreme Court Chambers, but you can change it to a room in your office if you please. Yours, &c.,

J. L. JERNIGAN.

The offer was not accepted by defendant's counsel, but on obtaining this notice, he applied for a rehearing of the application to postpone the examination, which had fallen down for yesterday. The defendants counsel insisted that the witness should not be compelled to go to Brownsville to attend to his interests there in the present troubled and excitement on the Texas border. The application was made on affidavit stating these troubles, &c., and was opposed by plaintiff, who interposed a long affidavit setting forth the diligence with which they had prosecuted this examination, and the difficulties which had been encountered in its progress. The matter was argued at Chambers by Mr. Bradley for defendants, and Mr. Johnston for plaintiff—on whose part it was insisted that the witness should not be allowed to leave the jurisdiction of the Court until he had answered the questions to which he had refused to respond, and which might be considered to be most material part of the examination. It was stated, in the course of counsel that the witness, so far as it had appeared, was shot in the City office about the middle of October last; and the exception which the witness had refused to answer involved transactions of, until this application, long before for the witness to absent himself until the Term of the Court. On the 7th inst. an order was made for the resumption of the examination, and directing that if proceed forthwith, in default of obtaining the plaintiff's counsel adjourning the following notice to the defendant's counsel, desiring to proceed at once, and offering to take the testimony of the witness under any circumstances as to place, hour of the day, &c.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

The news we receive from Mexico is of more than military importance. Gen. MARQUEZ, whose appointment from Guanajuato had been announced, had pronounced in favor of SANTA ANNA, and in lieu of appropriating a contracta of $2,800,000, which had been entrusted to him for convoy to Tampico. Upon the reception of this news at the capital, the French and British Ambassadors had joined in a vigorous but ineffectual protest. MIRAMON, upon hearing the tidings, bestirred himself, ordered horses for himself and for aides-de-camp, and despite the remonstrances of his cabinet, had sallied forth to seize "the traitor." It was well understood, however, that a share of the plunder was rather the aim of his expedition. The operations of the new government had had diverse fortune. MEJIA, the Liberal leader, had been ingloriously beaten in his expedition against Cordova, losing 600 men and 1,000 stand of arms, without firing a gun. DESCOLLADO, on the contrary, had defeated ALFORO, capturing his artillery, and entering Guanajuato in triumph. His next step was to be an attack upon Gen. WOLL, at Lagros. Brownsville was still besieged by COMONFORT, a body of whose men had seized and sacked the town of Rio Grande.

The bark Emily, which left this port in June last, rigged as a bark, bound to the coast of Africa, ostensibly upon a trading voyage, arrived here yesterday in charge of Lieut. H. K. STEVENS, of the United States sloop-of-war Portsmouth, with a prize crew. She was seized, it appears, on the 22d of September last, upon suspicion of being about to engage in the Slave-trade. A portion of the original crew, including the captain, who were sent home in her, were placed in the custody of the United States Marshal, and will, to-day, be committed to the Eldridge-street Jail, to await a preliminary examination before one of the United States Commissioners.

An arrival at Halifax, from Bermuda, brings intelligence of the loss of the barque Antelope, upon the Bermuda Shoal. The yellow fever is reported as prevailing at St. Thomas.

Throughout the City last evening, at all the localities where the Teutons congregate the most, the Schiller Fête was kept up with becoming spirit. At the Astor House there was a large and enthusiastic gathering, and those who could not afford to dine there, attended banquets and balls at the Turners' Hall, the Steuben House, Harmony Garden, and at Hillenbrand's.

The Police Commissioners have ordered the General-Superintendent to report to the District-Attorney for prosecution, the names of violators of the Liquor and Election Laws. Two members of the old force were restored.

In the Supreme Court, yesterday, a verdict of $500 was recovered against the City by a person injured in driving through New-Canal-street, in consequence of the bad state of repair of the street. The appeal in the suit brought in the name of the People against Trinity Church, to test the title of the Church to the property known as the "Church Farm," was argued yesterday before the General Term of the Supreme Court, but no decision was rendered. A suit brought by Dr. O. B. JUNG, one of the Revisers employed by the American Bible Union, for a libel contained in certain publications, relative to his course and work as a reviser, came on trial before Judge DALY, in the Common Pleas. The land case, in which Judge WALKER, of Texas, has been so notoriously implicated, appeared yesterday on the records of our courts. SIMON MONKNA, the original instigator of the impeachment, brings suit against the associates of the Judge in the alleged conspiracy; and an interlocutory question gives occasion to restate the particulars of a transaction with which frequent repetition has not made the public familiar.

At the Stock Exchange yesterday there was a fair demand for the Railway Shares, and better prices by ½@1 per cent. were paid, though the market left off dull in the afternoon. The State Stocks were steady. No change in Money or Foreign Bills. The Arago, for Havre, will take out to-morrow about $750,000 in Bullion.

The movements in Flour were quite extensive—having embraced receipts of 27,391 bbls., and sales of 31,500 bbls. Speculators were the principal purchasers. Prices advanced partially, 5c.@10c. ⅌ bbl. Heavy transactions in Wheat were likewise reported—mainly on speculation—at firmer rates. Corn, Rye, and Barley attracted more attention. Coffee, Sugars, Molasses, Rice, Hay, Whisky, Candles, Tallow, and Tobacco, were generally in fair demand. A good inquiry prevailed for Cotton at full quotations. Provisions were moderately sought after. Pork was cheaper. The freight engagements were restricted.

Characteristic and Foolish.

The citizens of Carrel County, Kentucky, being dissatisfied with the manner in which the navigation of the Mississippi is conducted, by the capitalists of "the big and little cities" of the big and little States," on the Atlantic coast, held a meeting at Ghent a few days ago for the purpose of setting the matter to rights. Most people in this quarter of the world will probably imagine that they then and there determined to form a company for the purpose of building and running steamers in their own way, that large quantities of stock were subscribed on the spot, and that measures were taken to secure incorporation, officers appointed, and a general plan of operations traced out, and an appeal made to the public for the success of the enterprise. Nothing of the kind. All this would have been very much too practical and business-like. Our Kentucky friends would not stoop to such foolish details. They, on the contrary, resorted to the true, genuine, original, recognized Southern mode of promoting Southern industry. In other words, they have "called A Convention" of the citizens of the Southwestern States, to take the matter into consideration, and we have no doubt, right, doubt a tolerably large quantity of talk, and a good deal of resolution, and perhaps a little action, before they disperse.

But we think we can predict with safety that the Western capitalists need not be in the least alarmed at the prospect. Three or four years' experience of Southern "Commercial Conventions" enables us to state with confidence that steamboat building and running will receive a very cursory notice at the hands of this august body, while Slavery, the Slave-trade, and "Old Brown," will be discussed with freedom and ardor, and that a series of resolutions will be passed expressing, in good set terms, the opinions entertained by Kentucky gentlemen of "Sawyers and the Abolitionists," and that at the close the further consideration of the steamboats will be postponed until the "nigger question" has been finally settled, all the "fanatics" have withdrawn into Canada, and the South has nothing else to complain of.

If Southerners will allow us, we will express with all possible deference our doubts whether "Conventions" furnish the best means of bringing everything to pass which the heart of man can desire. As schools for the cultivation and promotion of "gab," we admit them to be unsurpassed; but we cannot at this moment recollect a single branch of commerce or industry, in any country in the world, which has been built up by their instrumentality.

The San Juan Dispute.

We have no fears that the pending dispute concerning the ownership of the Island of San Juan, will lead to any interruption of the friendly relations which now exist between the United States and Great Britain. But the tone which the British Press maintains on the subject,—its cool and offensive assumption that all the right of the question is on their side and all the wrong on ours, with its menacing intimations of the necessity of rebuking American arrogance and presumption, make it a duty at least to clear up the subject somewhat for the information of our own people. We have accordingly had a map prepared and published in the TIMES of this morning, which will render it easy for every one who chooses, to inform himself as to the merits of the controversy.

The treaty of 1846 was intended to decide the dispute as to the proper boundary line between the Northwestern possessions of the two countries. The Americans claimed up to the line of 54° 40′;—the English claimed down to the line of 45°. As a compromise both parties agreed to accept the parallel of 49° as the boundary across the continent. That line prolonged would have cut off part of Vancouver's Island—leaving a portion of it in our possession. To this the English objected, as this island was of considerable importance to them and they were specially anxious to retain it all. Upon this point also our Government yielded;—and a provision was accordingly inserted in the treaty that the boundary line should be continued westward from a point already determined by a previous treaty—

"Along the forty-ninth parallel of north latitude to the middle of the channel which separates the Continent from the Island of Vancouver, and thence southerly through the middle of the said channel, and of Fuca Straits to the Pacific Ocean; provided that the navigation of the whole of the said channel and straits south of the forty-ninth parallel of north latitude should remain free and open to both parties."

The English Press assumes that the channel here referred to means the entire space embraced between Vancouver's Island and the Continent:—and that the boundary line must run straight through that space, without any reference to the point whether it is navigable or not. The Saturday Review states the question briefly thus:

"It is absurd to pretend that, in drawing the frontier on the map, they were thinking of some hydrographic chart, in which the navigable or preferable channel might deviate to the east or to the west. The channel between Vancouver's Island and the mainland is like the channel between England and France, or the channel between Great Britain and Ireland. The whole interval between the opposite shores is treated as a single body of water, and the boundary line which coincides with its centre determines the ownership of the islands, as it may leave them on one side or the other."

This is the nature and the basis of the British claim. In reply to the inferences drawn from it, we must remember, in the first place, that the only object of departing from the parallel of 49° at all, as the boundary line, was to give the English possession of Vancouver's Island. Not a word was said about any other island, or any other object. It would have been inconvenient to divide that island between the two countries, and for that reason alone the boundary line was so deflected as to give the whole of that territory to England. The natural presumption would be, therefore, that if any doubt should arise as to the construction of the treaty, it should be interpreted, in part, at least, by this intention—that is, so as to give England the whole of Vancouver's Island, and nothing more.

In the next place, it will be noted that the Treaty provides that "the navigation of the said channel and straits" shall be free and open to both parties. This language implies clearly that the channel in question was a navigable channel, and not merely the "whole interval between the opposite shores," as the English Press would have us believe. It is evident, furthermore, that a distinction is drawn by the language of the Treaty between the channel—which is navigable, and through the centre of which the boundary line is to run—and the straits which, as well as the channel, are to remain free and open to both countries.

No unprejudiced person can read the treaty without seeing clearly enough that its object was to give the English Vancouver's Island and nothing else, south of the boundary line which had been agreed upon for the mainland. The construction for which the English now contend, as a glance at the map will show, would cut directly across several smaller islands, and thus increase the very difficulty which the deflection of the line was intended to avoid. The channel which runs along the coast of Vancouver's Island is the broadest, deepest and most available track for vessels through the archipelago, and was, without doubt, in the immediate contemplation of the parties who made and the Governments which ratified the Treaty of 1846. Indeed, if the English critics will look at a map, published in London by TRUENER, and in New-York by COLTON, in 1855, before any controversy arose on the subject, they will find the boundary laid down precisely as it is now claimed by the United States. It is worthy of remark, also, that within a very short time the English have changed their ground as to the proper boundary. Until very lately they have insisted that the "channel" intended by the Treaty was the Strait of Rosario, running along near the mainland,—which would give them all the islands in the Gulf, as well as Vancouver's. This claim, however, was soon exploded, and they have now fallen back on the pretense that no navigable channel was designated, but only the whole "interval" between the Continent and Vancouver's Island. The position is quite as untenable as the other.

The tone in which our brethren over the water have seen fit to discuss this question has been to the last degree offensive and insolent. Apparently misled by the moderation of the American Press into the belief that the claim had no hold in the convictions of the American people, they have assumed throughout that it would be abandoned the moment it was boldly resisted. They have treated the occupation of the Island by Gen. HARNEY, therefore, as an act of pure piracy, and have talked with the utmost confidence of forcing our Government instantly to disavow it. We are happy to believe that on this point they will find themselves very much mistaken. If the act was without authority, our Government will probably say so. If it was wholly unnecessary and without provocation or justification, we cannot doubt that it will be both repudiated and apologized for. But the clamor and vehemence with which it is denounced will have no effect upon either our Government or people, except to render both far more reluctant than they might otherwise have been to yield anything, either of territory or apparent right, to the claims of the British Government.

Dr. Cheever's Mission Church.

Yesterday's Tribune contains the official vindication of Dr. CHEEVER's mendicant appeal to British Abolitionists for aid in supporting his pulpit in the City of New-York. We must not be accused of any special spite against Dr. CHEEVER, still less of any overweening personal vanity, for transferring this document to our own columns this morning. We are not, we trust, unduly proud of having provoked its vituperation,—nor shall we exult in any unseemly fashion over the humiliation such a performance cannot fail to inflict on its authors and those whom they profess to serve. Although it is signed "One who Authorized the Appeal," and although it smacks of the charity and good temper which mark the ministrations of the Church of the Puritans, we are unwilling to believe that it was written by Dr. CHEEVER himself. It is probably the effusion of some gentle member of his little band of disciples, who mistakes for something noble qualities which Dr. CHEEVER's best friends deplore as degrading, and who has just enough vigor of intellect to enable him to imitate the malevolent contortions, without a particle of the real force and inspiration of his modest master.

We reprint it simply as the official vindication of what we have branded as the disgraceful appeal of Dr. CHEEVER to British Abolitionists, to sustain him in preaching sermons to empty pews in New-York City. We commend it to Rev. Mr. SPURGEON and his associate contributors, as a specimen of the preaching for which their alms are solicited. Perhaps they may infer from its temper and its language why Dr. CHEEVER's hearers are not willing to pay for the privilege of sitting under the gentle droppings of his sanctuary;—and if they have not permitted their missionary ardor to overbear their common sense, they may be able to judge how much good they are likely to effect by sending money to support a church governed and inspired by such a spirit. For if Dr. CHEEVER himself is not the author of this document, it indicates accurately the effect of his regular ministrations upon one of his congenial, devoted and steadfast friends.

We should be glad to aid our readers in the effort to detect in this paper any plausible excuse for the appeal to British Abolitionists on behalf of Dr. CHEEVER's Church. They will scarcely find it in the prediction of the writer that "the time may come when Mr. RAYMOND will have occasion to apologize and explain, and worm and sneak around" Dr. CHEEVER;—or in the reference to our statements as "whoppers—very sneaking and nasty,"—or in his characterization of the Editor of this journal as "a leading flunkey and dough face,"—a "sneak,—a little villain, a Jefferson Brick, a parasite upon snobbish respectability, as one of the thousand and one vermin of the Press who never approach God's truth except to bleed or defile it." All this flux of feculent rhetoric has its uses; it indicates the taste, the culture, the daily reading, and the spiritual exercises of the representative of the Puritan church who writes it. But it does not show on what grounds of justice and of decency he asks British Abolitionists to indulge him, at the expense of their pockets, in the luxury of uttering or of listening to such stated preaching of the Gospel as this. Possibly the reason may be found in the claim that "no preacher in the country, but Dr. CHEEVER, has lifted up the standard of God's Word against the sin of Slavery:"—but, unfortunately, the declaration, in any reputable sense which can be given to it, is untrue. It is quite possible that no preacher has equaled or even rivaled Dr. CHEEVER in using God's Word as a vocabulary of curses—in sifting it for epithets of denunciation—in exploring its pages for forms and phrases of damnation, to be hurled with Christian meekness at the heads of all those who differ from him in regard to Slavery. Dr. CHEEVER has a special gift for evading the penalties of the civil law,—and for cloaking his breaches of the moral law against profane swearing, by clothing the ebullitions of his Christian wrath in the language of Scripture:—and if this is what his champion means by "lifting up the standard of God's Word," his supremacy will probably not be called in question. How much good he has done thereby, either to the "standard" or to those in whose faces it has been lifted up, his decayed church, the departed confidence of the Christian public, his begging appeal to foreign Abolitionists, and the angelic temper of his disciple in the Tribune, may inform the world.

The real argument of this official vindication—all, we mean, of argument that it contains—is found in its statement that—

"From Paul's time to the present, it has been customary for weak branches of Christ's Church to appeal to the stronger for aid, and these appeals are made where there is the greatest probability of a response. * * Any appeal made to the American churches generally in behalf of Dr. CHEEVER, and in support of his Abolition views, would have been worse than bootless, and that for reasons set forth by Dr. CHEEVER in the letter alluded to, because the Church in America is not willing to take a stand against Slavery as sin."

Why is Dr. CHEEVER's church "weak?" It is in the largest city of the Western Hemisphere; is surrounded by wealth and culture, and numbered among its members and supporters, at the outset, strong, substantial and zealous Christian men. Dr. CHEEVER declares that they left it because he preached against Slavery. But HENRY WARD BEECHER preaches against Slavery, and instead of losing his supporters, they gather around him closer and thicker every year, and he is compelled to enlarge still farther what is already the largest church in this country. Dr. CHEEVER will scarcely allege that Mr. BEECHER does not "lift up the standard of God's Word against the sin of Slavery" as truly and as effectively as he [illegible] send agents on mendicant missions to British Abolitionists for succor and a salary? Is Dr. CHEEVER so morbidly conceited—so complete a monomaniac in his Pharisaical self-complacency, that it never occurs to him to seek the secret of this difference in his own defects? Can he not appreciate—or does he suppose his hearers insensible to—the difference between preaching the truth in love, and preaching it in wrath and hatred, and with the hideous temper of a Grand Inquisitor, in the days when racks and tortures were the orthodox modes of "lifting up the standard of God's Word" against sin? The mere fact that his church is "weak" does not prove that it deserves to be strengthened;—the natural and just presumption to be drawn from the weakness of any church situated as is the Church of the Puritans, is that the pastor is not the man for the place—that he can do no good by remaining in it, and that all the alms bestowed in keeping him there will be utterly wasted and thrown away. He may gratify the congenial passions of a few personal adulators, and gratify his own vanity, and perhaps derive pleasure from the thought that he is vexing the souls, by cheating the hopes, of his opponents. But these are scarcely sufficient motives for a "Macedonian cry" sent over the sea to provoke a large influx of British gold into the treasury of an American church.

We beg our readers to understand that we have not brought this matter before the public, nor are we responsible for its present discussion. Dr. CHEEVER himself has given it to the world by his personal appeal, and, by the peculiar grounds on which he based his claim to British aid he has challenged and invited the public scrutiny of their validity. We have not hesitated to declare our conviction that he does not merit, as a public teacher, the eleemosynary aid he asks at the hands of British Abolitionists. Those who may be disposed to censure the freedom of our personal strictures, will do well to remember the arrogant personal claims which have provoked them. The Tribune Expositor declares that "no Abolitionist can be, in the nature of things, a Pharisee." We refute his philosophical deduction by the fact of Dr. CHEEVER's existence.

A Peruvian Parade.

The military laurels won by President BUCHANAN in Utah, Kansas, Nicaragua and Virginia are green and glorious. But our illustrious Executive must look well to his renown, for the price of fame is perpetual preeminence; and a South American dignitary, the President of Peru, Don RAMON CASTILLA, is evidently in a fair way to rival, if not to surpass, the hero of Harper's Ferry. Don RAMON, indeed, has just achieved a feat of arms which deserves to be classed with the brightest exploit of that immortal King of France, of whom history records that he,

"With forty thousand men
Marched up the hill, and then marched down again."

The Republic of Ecuador, as our readers may be surprised to learn, has recently been undergoing an attack of revolution. The immediate object of this most unusual convulsion was the ejection from the seat of power of a highly obnoxious President, Gen. ROBLES by name. The said ROBLES had approved himself as impartial a troubler of his fellow-creatures as that famous eclectic Sir HORATIO PALVARENG, of whom the old ditty declares that, being born an Italian and become an English knight under ELIZABETH, he put the whole world to profit, and with an equal ardor "pillaged the Pope and robbed the Queen." ROBLES plundered the Treasury of Ecuador with one hand and the merchants of Peru trading in Ecuadorian ports with the other. He behaved to the Peruvians, in short, very much as Mexican MIRAMON has so long been behaving to Americans. But the spirit of PIZARRO breathes through the Peruvian heart, and makes that formidable people much less tolerant of ROBLES than we have been of MIRAMON. So Gen. CASTILLA, the Peruvian President, resolved one fine day to act on the modern principle of intervention, give ROBLES a drubbing, and air his own gallant army. Accordingly, not with forty, but with four thousand men and all necessary appurtenances of war, he set sail in a goodly fleet from Paita to assail ROBLES in Guayaquil, and utterly abolish him from off the face of the earth. "Far off his coming shone," and the wicked ROBLES trembled much more intensely at the vision than BRIGHAM YOUNG condescended to do when the American army marched into his rocky realm. He took thought with himself as to his ability to meet his foe; and reporting unfavorably, suddenly left—or in the graphic language of Gen. CASTILLA, who, like CÆSAR and NAPOLEON, is his own historian, "disappeared."

In consequence of this decisive manœuvre, Gen. CASTILLA, who quitted his native land inflamed with the desire of "quickly terminating the campaign undertaken against the Government of Ecuador," found his warmest hopes more than fulfilled. He found, on reaching the scene of action, that his enemy had completely vanished, leaving "not a track behind," and that "there were not in Ecuador any enemies to fight against." This being the state of things, the Peruvian President, with a singular felicity of instinct, at once determined that it "would be indecorous to employ the arms of Peru," and having struck upon this happy conclusion, at once "ordered the troops to go on shore to refresh themselves, and let the ships be fumigated."

At this point, perhaps, it is that Mr. BUCHANAN has a little the advantage of Gen. CASTILLA as a commander, for the moment in which Mr. BUCHANAN has discovered that he "had no enemies to fight against," has always been chosen by him for the signal displays of his strategy and his valor, and, on the whole, we suppose we must own that, as before the rest of the world, this parade of CASTILLA will hardly equal in its dignified revelations of South American political and military skill, the impressions produced by the campaign of Harper's Ferry and the subsequent course of Gov. WISE and Mr. BUCHANAN, in regard to the integrity of the great North American Union, the valor of Virginia, and the mental capacity of the distinguished personages to whom the control of public affairs in the United States has been confided by a judicious people [illegible] the fact, and of the world, and to afford the opportunity to demonstrate to the world practical measures several important points relative to our interests in that region, and the importance of our present negotiations with Mexico.

These engines, with the machinery and goods, having been landed at Port Lavaca, will be transported to their destination over land, a distance of fifteen hundred miles, by wagons. They make 50 tons or 100,000 pounds of freight, the contract price of which from New-York to the mines is 15 cents per pound, making the entire cost of freight $15,000. A mine must contain an inexhaustible store of riches to pay such a rate of freight as this; but there is no other alternative. The company must abandon their enterprise entirely, or submit to the long, tedious and expensive method of forwarding whatever they need for mining purposes over immense stretches of uninhabited, desert country, from New-York via St. Louis or Texas, or from San Francisco California.

The only feasible route to Arizona is from Guaymas through Sonora. The rate of freight from New-York to Guaymas, under ordinary circumstances, may be estimated at $60 per ton, or 1½ cents per pound, and from Guaymas to the interior of Arizona, at 4 cents per pound, thus making the rate of freights for the entire distance from New-York to Arizona 5½ cents per pound, or but little more than one third the rate now paid by the Sonora Company, and the route they have selected is the most economical of all within United States Territory. The route through Sonora would save this Company, in the item of freight on their present adventure, but little less than $10,000, and when we reflect on the vast interests that lie slumbering in that region, we cannot but be alive to the importance of a liberal treaty with the neighboring Republic, which will give us not only rights of way, but other privileges of a trading and commercial nature.

Disunion in Virginia.

An intelligent correspondent writing, from the Valley of Virginia, a letter which we publish this morning, informs us that the most extraordinary revulsion of sentiment has taken place throughout Virginia, in consequence of the Harper's Ferry business. Political conservatism has suddenly vanished, like one of those sinking streams of the Western part of the State, which dive into the earth, only to reappear a brawling torrent miles away. The impossibility of keeping upon courteous terms with the Northern States, is universally asserted. The act of BROWN and his partisans is recognized as the act of the whole Northern people; and, any wonder we may indulge in at the inefficacy of the energetic disclaimer uttered by the North through the Press, may be qualified by the recollection, that Virginians are only a reading people, so far as the Richmond journals may be regarded as literature. It is quite safe to say, that very few, indeed, of the inhabitants of the "Tenth Legion" have any idea other than that BROWN was the accredited agent of a majority of the citizens of the non-slaveholding States; and that an indefinite number of Browns may be looked for in Virginia, at an early future. In these circumstances, nothing is more natural than that every element of repulsion should be set actively to work.

But the disunion fever, which our correspondent discovers, is by no means of the same generic type as that prevalent nearer the tropics. There is a strongly commercial aspect to the political treatment of the question. Disunion on the Gulf means cheaper slave-labor; for from the frontier of an independent republic, hostile to Slavery, slaves must necessarily be withdrawn. Disunion in Virginia signifies a determination to stop the exodus of slaves from the State; by rendering the property in such holdings safer and more enduring; and by erecting more difficult barriers against the temptations of the abolitionist, and the bolder efforts of captains like BROWN. The entire depletion of Virginia is, in the absence of revived Slave-trade, the prime need of the cotton-growing States; to retain slaves, and to enjoy their labor, the Virginian believes to be the most valuable tradition received from his venerable fathers. These are the views of classes, and classes are operated upon by politicians through their fears, and the fears of the "Tenth Legion" are reasonably enough aroused. But individual interests are independent of these influences. If the panic be as violent as it is represented, the private owners of slaves may bluster and rave as they please at secession gatherings, and propose what measures of retaliation or of defence their fears or temper may prompt. Nevertheless, the insecurity of his human herd is the main point; and even with a Union, he must be satisfied of the augmented danger he incurs of losing his property, and without a Union, he must know its retention to be a practicable impossibility.

In truth, the association of Virginia with any more Southern States in a project of disunion would furnish the era from which its future historian would date emancipation. To-day the institution perishes of exhaustion. From all parts of the State, and especially the trans-Alleghanian portion, slaves are incessantly hurried to Richmond, or shipped to Nashville, for sale to Southern dealers. More than the annual increase is thus exported southward by the fears or the poverty of the slave-holder, while northward that everlasting current of runaways—an exportation beyond the control of the most indefatigable excise—is opening a vital vein in the system. It is doubtful, indeed, whether even the added vigilance invited by the Harper's Ferry failure will seriously diminish this outgo, while new motives will undoubtedly be given to the slaves to attempt escape. Add to this state of things the new element of disunion, place the Northern plotters of servile insurrection beyond the reach of a State requisition or of Federal process; and let Pennsylvania, not Canada, be the secure sanctuary of the fugitive slave, and a year would not elapse before "Sauve qui peut!" would be the cry, and the southern line of Virginia would be darkened by an exodus unequaled since SESOSTRIS poured his hordes into Asia. Without its slaves Virginia could no longer remain in the Southern Confederacy; and that vision of an independent Northern Republic, which is probably never to exist, would be reinforced by another Free State. Such results are inevitable, and, hating the disunion fragment, wholly beyond the preventive powers of the "Tenth Legion." Let it ponder the subject, and exert its asserted influence in Virginia politics accordingly.

The White Captive.

The connoisseurs of New-York are beginning to learn that a great sculptor as well as a great painter may possibly be had (having first been born, which is, after all, as HORACE wisely sang, the great essential in the genesis of genius) in the studios of nature on this side the sea, almost as well as in the studios of art beyond the Atlantic. This impression is not likely to be [illegible] [illegible] Mr. SQUIRE, in [illegible] of the "White Captive," which has been [illegible] of Mr. SQUIRE, in order that it may be shown to the public for their own good and the encouragement of the artist. A private view of the [illegible] last night at Mr. SQUIRE's studio, No. 536 Broadway. Upon the work, in its artistic aspect, we cannot now dwell [illegible] as we see in the possible attention [illegible] liberties may give rise at this fearful [illegible] sentiment effaces. Mr. SQUIRE, who is of [illegible] by birth, (although he vainly tries to cloak the fact beneath his calling as an artist) presents his "White Captive" representing a lovely white girl fallen into the power of the cruel aborigines of America. But where we remember that the artist belongs to a Republican Re-[illegible], who has just recently returned from England, who can doubt that the conception of such a work finds a part of its original plot laid by Sawyers, Brown, Gaunt, Lee and Forney for the conquest of Virginia, and that the "White Captive" here set before us typifies one of those "fanatics in heart" who were metaphorically brought into direct contact with [illegible] during the trial of "old Ossawattomie?" The design of this piece of sculpture is evidently an attempt to show the marble in white of which it is made, and the [illegible] and Gov. WISE will be represented in Virginia if he does not [illegible] as well as the artist. The [illegible] to him, and the other [illegible] to them, in the course of the process.

Academy of Music.

VERDI'S "Sicilian Vespers" was played last evening for the third time, to a house in every respect equal to that which greeted it on its first night. It was a good performance, the chorus and orchestra being in fine working order, and the principal singers somewhat more at home in their parts. Many of the movements were loudly applauded. The favor of the public is undoubtedly with the composer, but there is dissatisfaction with the prolonged action, and it is thought that the management has not put on the boards enough in the costs. This dramatic singers are required for an opera like this, is abundantly proved by the success of Signor FERRI, and the failure of almost everybody else. We hope to see the opera given with other distribution.

There will be a grand matinée to-day, when the whole of the "Sicilian Vespers" will be given.

THE SCHILLER FEST.

The German Population Surrounded Themselves to Banquet and Ball.

THE ASTOR HOUSE BANQUET.

At the Astor House last evening the festivities were pleasantly commenced. The dining hall was appropriately and tastefully decorated. It may be considered as a remarkable [illegible] occasion that ladies were permitted to partake of the banquet which was so beautifully provided.

The President, after making a few appropriate remarks, offered the first regular toast, which was briefly responded to by Mr. KUNZ.

Dr. SCHMITZ, of Boston, was then introduced, and celebrated the praises of Germany by reading the poem to which the first prize was recently awarded. The poem, which was in German, cannot be translated so as to do full justice to the original, alluding to the triumphs of the past century, and to all the achievements of science, the past year. The Present, that all this can do and glorify. What can the future do? Ah! what, with Germany's dreams!

He then declares that Germany's dreams were of Freedom. An address, represented to come from the dust of the immortal bard, is then introduced, the author exhorts his countrymen of every age to go forth and avenge the shame done to humanity whenever they hear the sneer of Slavery's lash.

The poem was enthusiastically received. The second toast, which was in honor of Dr. [illegible] Vaterland, Mr. UNZELMANN responded, speaking especially of German unity, and America as the refuge of the humblest of the day when it should be realized.

Mr. WINMACK spoke to the third toast, "The noble land of our children, our adopted land," looking to the possibility of a new Germania arising on the shores of the Atlantic.

After a song, President KUNZ was called on. He spoke, of course, in English, making a happy allusion to the new feature of the occasion, the presence of ladies at the feast.

On behalf of "Our guests," Hon. GUSTAV BADEMANN spoke. He gave a stanza of German as his response to the sentiment, and continued in English. He said that the world stopped three days to celebrate SCHILLER's praises, because he was great as a historian, lyric poet, dramatic critic and philosopher. In conclusion, he said: "Let us look forward for fifty years, and imagine the glory and freedom of Germany, and bring a toast for Dr. [illegible] (Prolonged applause.)

Mayor TIEMANN, Dr. LEWIS, Mr. KALB, Dr. [illegible], and others were among those who made addresses subsequently.

Songs and volunteer toasts kept the company together until 1 o'clock this morning.

THE FESTIVITIES AT TURNER HALL.

Although the Philosophy of to-day does not stand whether the head of Mathusala, discharged his physique as well as his mental muscle, the New-York Turnverein, cultivating poetry as well as gymnastics, saw no inconsistency in arranging a Schiller Commemorative Celebration on a somewhat grand scale. The Turnverein number about six hundred members, and have recently purchased the old Quaker Meeting-house, in Orchard-street, for their exclusive use. They have a free-school of about six hundred pupils—[illegible] Americans—teaching gymnastics for a trifling remuneration by charge. They have also a choral society called the Liederkranz. The gymnastic performances of the Turners have been frequently described.

The large hall was appropriately decorated for the occasion with evergreens and emblems. A bust of SCHILLER occupied a pedestal at the end of the room, surrounded with Turner flags, flowers and lights. The walls were adorned with the banners and insignia of the society. The programme of the festivities consisted of an overture by the band; an oration by Mr. [illegible], the author of the Turner Revolution; a chorus on SCHILLER in German by Dr. BENDIX, singing a number of the compositions of SCHILLER by Dr. [illegible] Turner, a declamation of SCHILLER's "Die Glocke," by Mr. HIRTH, singing by the Liederkranz, a declamation by Mr. BERWIG, dancing and supper. There were from five to six hundred present during the evening, and the memory of SCHILLER was duly honored.

CELEBRATION AT THE STEUBEN HOUSE.

The Schiller Lodge and the Euphonia and Germania Singing Societies combined to celebrate the Centennial at the Steuben House, and the profusion of the flowers, together with the [illegible] of the festive board, were sufficient to have enticed Goethe from his favorite investigations, or Schiller from his beloved odes of [illegible] such strange bedfellows—or, smile—according to history, had these twin poets of Germany. The entertainment consisted of an address by Dr. [illegible] on the author's works, a declamation by Mr. [illegible] of SCHILLER's "Die Glocke," singing by the Euphonia and Colonia clubs, and the inevitable ball and supper. The room was tastefully arranged for the occasion with evergreens, flags, the banner of the Lodge, and a bust of SCHILLER surrounded by a painting of WASHINGTON. The exercises appeared to gratify all appetites, and the occasion was thereby rendered pleasant to all the participants. The front of the building was decorated with a portrait of SCHILLER and other suitable transparencies.

SCHILLER-FEST IN THE VOLK'S GARTEN.

The celebration of the centenary of SCHILLER's birth was resumed last night at the Volk's Garten, in the Bowery. The proceedings were not devoid of interest. The programme consisted of a banquet and ball, which were preceded by a prologue, an address, two tableaux, and a recitation of SCHILLER's song of the Bell. The prologue was written and pronounced by Mr. SCHMITZ, one of the actors at the Stadt Theatre. The first tableau represented the [illegible] of a bust of SCHILLER, from the side of which figures symbolizing Science and Art looked appreciatively on. Dr. HAMMERSTEIN then delivered an eulogistic address in German. The second tableau was an impersonation of the characters in that song of contrast in which he immortalizes the representatives of the three Cantons who met on the Rütli and swore to recover their country's independence. The music to which the declamations and tableaux were accompanied and interspersed was admirable. Mr. [illegible], the general manager of the establishment, had charge of all the arrangements, and fulfilled his office in a manner that entitles him to credit.

AT METROPOLITAN HALL.

There was a large party of Germans [illegible] their ladies gathered in Metropolitan Hall, in Broadway, last evening, convened to continue the celebration of the Centennial Birthday Anniversary of FREDERICK SCHILLER. THE SLAVE-TRADE.

LATEST FROM AFRICA.

A Slave-Hunt—Lands Enslaved on the Coast of Africa—Sickness among the Slaves.

FIRST ARRIVAL AT THIS PORT.

The ship Emily arrived at this port yesterday in charge of Lieut. H. H. Stevens and a prize crew from the United States steamer Vincennes, off the Coast of Africa, with a cargo of slaves, which she had taken on the 2d of September, by Capt. Chaunce, of the Portuguese barque Emilia, which was found with nearly 500 slaves on board, and given up to the Spanish Consul at Havana. The Emilia was condemned in the Admiralty Court, and given over to the Marshal. The Emily, with a portion of which only we now have to do, was fitted out in Havana, and sailed from that port for the coast of Africa, where she took her cargo of slaves, and sailed for Havana. She was boarded by the Vincennes off the Cuban coast, and was ordered to Monrovia, Liberia, for adjudication. Her crew were examined. Her chart showed a portion of her track rubbed out; there was no log-book, but the captain only would pretend that he was ignorant of the fact. There was a very powerful and clear pair of glasses, and a very excellent spy-glass on the shipping outfitter, seemed incorrect; her papers, not to be found, although his name was on the bottom. Her papers seemed forgeries. Her crew reported that the United States Marshal had taken her in New-York, she having been condemned in Havana. There, the rig had been changed from that of a bark, to that of a ship. Her papers were for a bark, not a ship. The crew said this had been made immediately on leaving New-York. The captain said he did it on the coast; the log showed it to be a bark, and the crew said it was done about the middle of the voyage, and she cleared from N[illegible]. The crew consisted of one American, and one Spaniard or Portuguese, who always carry these passports, one of them to the boat captain, and the other the agent for Cuba. The Captain, whose name was Lindsay, a native of Boston, pretended to know nothing of the slaves; they pretended entire ignorance of everything, and the crew refused to give his name or any other name, the other gave his name as Antonio Gabriel, and said nothing further. The American said he was there for his health (in the Coast of Africa, the most healthy, or unhealthy coast in the world.) The crew had muskets, and were provided with revolvers, and the captain had a pistol-butt or dagger.

The examination of her hold showed about one hundred water casks, most of them full; a large quantity of rice, many boxes of herring, several boxes of salt, beans and other stores; planking, which might be for a stage deck, and two large boilers with grates and tubes attached. Here were all the appliances of a slaver, which he said he had landed cargo, but had no slaves on board. He said he had lost one slaver, and it was thought that he might have made fast his irons to her bottom and thrown the whole overboard, or have sunk them with the vessel.

This information we came along down the coast, and we proceed right on to a small village, where we found our boat, and we were up on our way home. The gal water way, and we came down on land. Neither means yet showed any colors. When hailed, she answered, the Emily. I went with Lieut. Stevens, and we boarded her, as she was a American colony, and we the ship, the boys on. Shortly after Lieut. Stevens and Com. Chaunce ordered her back to the anchorage, and I was ordered to be examined. Her chart showed a portion of her track rubbed out; there was no log, but the captain only would pretend to be ignorant of the fact. There was a very powerful and clear pair of glasses, and a very excellent spy-glass on the shipping outfitter seemed incorrect; her papers, not to be found, although his name was on the bottom. Her papers seemed forgeries. The

THE DRIGGS PATENT PIANO-FORTE,
OR THE VIOLIN PIANO.
"The best Piano existing."
From The New-York Times.

We have now an instrument without an equal. All that was cumbersome has been done away with. The strain of the strings is brought to bear on the iron frame only, and the sound-board or tone magnifier is as detached and vibratory as it could be, merely because there is nothing whatever to interfere with its office. Simple as this construction may seem, it works an entire change in the sound-producing principle of the Piano-forte. It carries the Piano into the class of the violin—the most perfect, because the most responsive instrument in the world. In sustained passages, the vocal effect of Mr. Driggs' patent is wonderful; it can sing with a smooth delicacy perfectly unattainable on any other instrument. The gain of power is equally remarkable; an ordinary player obtains, with no exertion, the fullness of a grand Piano-forte. Manufactured and for sale by the DRIGGS PIANO COMPANY, at the Music store of WM. HALL & SON, No. 543 Broadway, one block above the St. Nicholas.

CITY INTELLIGENCE.

A Good Humored Scamper.—A romantic story has been circulated lately to the effect that a Mr. Williams, who resides in Washington-street, recently went to Poughkeepsie on a hunting expedition, taking his daughter with him; that he put up at a hotel in that city kept by a Mr. Cannon, whose attractions yielded to the charms of sweet sixteen, and that the young couple, taking advantage of the darkness, left the hotel one night about 10 o'clock, went to a Justice of the Peace near by, had a ceremony performed, and returned to Mr. Cannon's, it is said, did not claim his bride until a parsonical ceremony had been had over her. Then the bridal party, consisting of the happy pair, Mr. Cannon, and the clergyman, set out for the residence of Mr. Fraser, about a mile distant, where the bridegroom's father, a widow, to be kept in the dark, was to be introduced to his child. The mother, either from ignorance of the marriage or from a desire to prevent the consummation of the nuptials, had taken the same means to regain the fugitive daughter. After hearing an argument from the parents, the bridegroom, and the clergyman, the mother consented to the union, and the child to be remanded to the custody of Mr. Fraser. Mr. Moore was appointed the counsellor in the case, and Mr. Geo. W. Lane the clergyman.

Fire Lower's Air Ship.—The high wind which prevailed early yesterday morning rendered it necessary to discharge the gas from the balloon, City of New-York. The car, borne down by the force of the wind, fell about 7½ o'clock, but no damage was done, beyond a premature conclusion of the exhibition. Professor Lowe, finding that the balloon would become charged by the action of the wind upon its vast surface, ordered the gas, of which about sixty-five thousand feet had been admitted during the day, to be discharged. The violence of the gale prevented access to the valve, and the partially filled condition of the balloon made it safer to effect a rapid discharge, by the cutting of the seams of the balloon was adopted. From this circumstance arose the rumor of the explosion, which was industriously circulated during the day, and repeated by the Evening Post. The story of a disaster was wholly unfounded. Neither the gas-envelop nor the apparatus have sustained any injury. It was originally intended that the exhibition should remain open for a fortnight, and that the balloon should remain expanded, the ascension will probably take place early next week. Should the weather be calm to-day, Prof. Lowe will make an ascension in his new balloon Pioneer, for the purpose of testing the accuracy of his instruments.

The Remains of Congressman.—The cheiropiers of the late Hon. David C. Broderick, which were postponed from last Sunday, will take place to-morrow. It is expected that Senator Douglas will deliver the funeral oration, but the sickness of his wife, and his own ill health, prevented his accepting the appointment. Hon. John M. Parsons, Esq., of Rochester, will pronounce the oration, in the large Chapel of the New-York University, at 4 o'clock P. M. Mr. Broderick was an intimate friend of Senator Rousseau, and a member of the California Legislature at the time of Mr. Rousseau's election to the Senate. The procession will form at 1 o'clock, the right resting on Chatham-street, near the Howard Engine-house No. 31. The route will be up Hudson-street to Fourteenth, up Fourteenth to Broadway, down Broadway to the Park, up Chatham to and out Pearl-street to Madison, down Fourteenth-street to Broadway, down Broadway to University-place to the University building. About sixty companies will take part in the ceremonies, the whole to be under the generalship of Hamet Hoffman as Chief Marshal, with the Board of Assistant Engineers as his aids.

The Chloroform Case—An Examination Postponed.—The City Hall Police Court was crowded yesterday noon with those curious to witness the proceedings in the case of Dr. John H. Wesser, of No. [illegible] Ninth-avenue, charged by his wife with an attempt to kill her by the administration of chloroform. The Doctor's friends appeared for the prosecution, and Mr. Hunter Brasher for the defense. Officer Serre, having been sent to bring the Doctor before the Court, soon returned, stating that he had reached the gate of the Tombs, on the way to the City Hall, when the prisoner was attacked with an epileptic fit. Dr. Cole, physician to the prison, had decided that he was too ill to appear in Court. He had therefore removed him to the Prisoners' Hospital for treatment. Under these circumstances, upon consultation between the counsel, the hearing was postponed until Monday next, at 3 P. M. The examination promises to be one of unusual interest.

Surgeon Visit.—Rev. Charles Kelsey, pastor of the Willett-street Church, was surprised on Thursday evening by finding on returning home after spending the day out, that a large number of his parishioners had usurped possession of his parsonage. Father Hoyt met him as he entered the house, and presented him with a small copy of the Book of Discipline, which he commended to his careful perusal. This, Rev. Mr. Kelsey found to be a profitable occupation, as the book contained the sum of $300. Taken by surprise as he was, the pastor made a few appropriate remarks. Although Mr. Kelsey has been settled over the Church but two years, the edifice which the congregation occupies has been remodeled at an expense of $8,000, and the number of communicants has been largely increased.

Curious Discovery.—While the workmen were removing the cobble-stones from Wall-street, a large granite pile was uncovered, near the crossing on West-street, to which ships were formerly moored. The stone was deeply imbedded in the earth, and a cavity in its top still shows the marks of the lead by which an iron staple was once fastened to it. This relic, being two squares distant from the present water front, shows what extensive improvements have been made upon the East River. At the time it was in use most of the business of the City was transacted in the First Ward, and Wall, Water, Pearl, and Front streets were occupied by fashionable residences.

The People's Convention.—A People's Party, which was organized about two years since, and delegates from which have been holding regular meetings the past four months, met in Convention, last evening, at the Home House, Broadway. A. M. Burgess presided. Every Ward was represented. After some debate, and several ballots, the following nominations were made: For Mayor, Simon Cameron; for Corporation Counsel, Hiram F. Arnold; for Governor of the Almshouse, William Tweed. The Convention will meet again next week.

Look to your Front-doors.—A saucy robbery took place on Wednesday evening last at the house of Jas. B. Norris, No. 76 Seventh-street, near Fifth-avenue, between 5 and 6 o'clock P. M. While the family were at tea in the basement, some one or more entered the house, went up stairs, and with keys of their own, opened the bureau drawers, and stole money and jewelry to the value of $250, and two boxes of $1,000 each, of the State of Missouri. They left with their booty undiscovered. A more impudent attempt was perhaps never perpetrated.

The Inebriates' Home.—At a preliminary meeting of the friends of the inebriate, which was recently held, an Executive Committee was appointed to make arrangements for a public meeting at an early day, in order to lay more fully before the public the plans of the "Inebriates' Friend Society," under the auspices of which the projected "Home" is to be established. Hon. C. C. Leigh has been appointed Treasurer, and will be glad to receive subscriptions and donations in furtherance of the enterprise.

Homœopathic Medical Society.—The following gentlemen were elected officers of the Homœopathic Medical Society of the City and County of New-York, at their annual election:—Samuel B. Ward, M. D., President; Alonzo S. Ball, M. D., Vice-President; Jas. T. Alexy, M. D., Secretary; A. Hasbrouck, M. D., Treasurer; R. R. Mabey, M. D., C. Wesselhoeft, M. D., E. Kirby, M. D., R. McMurray, M. D., M. Fellows, M. D., Censors.

Death from a Fall.—John F. Francis, a workman engaged on the building in process of erection at the corner of Forty-second-street and Broadway, entered his foothold and, falling, sustained injuries which soon resulted in his death. The Coroner was notified.

Thanks to Commissioners, at the meeting yesterday morning two of the old police, John Holland, of the Fifth Ward, and John Bram, of the Third, were discharged. The Commissioner was directed to communicate with the District-Attorney, for prosecution, the transgressors of the peace and lawyer laws.

Accidental Suicide.—Between 5 and 6 o'clock, yesterday afternoon, Mr. Bernard Gaffney, aged forty-[illegible], committed suicide in the room of No. 23 Orchard-street. He inflicted two lacerations upon the left side of his throat, and it is feared they will move fatal.

Hudson River Railroad.—The change of time for the winter arrangement of trains on the Hudson River Railroad and New-York Central Railroad, will take place on Monday, Nov. 14. The through express trains leave New-York, will leave at 7 and 11 A. M., and 5 P. M.

Collision in the Narrows.—Isaac Benson, a passenger, was knocked from the topgallant forecastle of the bark J. Arms, in the Narrows, on Thursday morning, and, although the vessel immediately hove-aback, and every effort made to save him, he was drowned.

Fire in Twenty-fourth-street.—The alarm about 6 o'clock last evening, for the Third District, was caused by a quantity of shavings taking fire at the foot of Twenty-fifth-street. No damage was done.

[illegible] Runaways.

[illegible] Arrested.

[illegible] Fire.—At about 10 o'clock yesterday morning the Long Island Coal-Oil Works, situated on the block bounded by Ralph, Hickory and Division avenues, were entirely destroyed by fire. The building was a cheap frame structure, and the total loss to the owners, Messrs. Hemmion & Seaman, is estimated at $1,000, which amount is fully covered by insurance in the New-Amsterdam Insurance Company. The fire originated in some oil becoming over-heated while workmen were engaged in cleaning out one of the stills.

Changes in Flushing.—The Dutch Reformed and the Methodist Churches in Flushing have both been enlarged recently. Rev. Mr. Holloway, late of the Lee-avenue Church, Brooklyn, has been installed Pastor of the former. The latter edifice will be reopened to-morrow. In the morning Rev. Bishop James will officiate; in the afternoon, Rev. Dr. Burch, of New-York, and in the evening, Rev. W. J. Stubly, of Brooklyn.

New Church.—The corner-stone of a new M. E. Church was laid on East Warren, near Smith-street, Thursday afternoon, by Bishop James. The new structure is to be of brick, 60 by 87 feet, and is intended to seat 800 persons. It will cost $18,000. A large portion of this amount has already been subscribed and paid in to the Treasurer.

Temperance.—The Brooklyn City Temperance Society commenced their Winter meetings in Musical Hall, Thursday evening. There was a large attendance, and addresses were made by Mathew Hale Smith and C. C. Leigh. These meetings are held every Thursday evening.

An Improvement.—The Central Railroad Company intend to run cars every half hour to Jamaica from the South Ferry. The distance is 12 miles.

Dispensary.—During the past month 258 persons were treated in the Eastern District Dispensary, and 421 prescriptions were gratuitously dispensed.

A Rhode Island Mulatto Girl Sold into Slavery.

Correspondence of the Boston Journal.

Providence, R. I., Wednesday, Nov. 2, 1859.

A scandalous story has been whispered about from ear to ear, during the past week, respecting an alleged abduction of a mulatto girl of this city, and her being sold into Slavery at the South. The Newport News was the means of the story being made public, and as it has thereby obtained general circulation, I will state the facts of the case. There are two statements, each of which has firm supporters. The girl was born of a slave woman owned by a wealthy family in New-Orleans, and when two years of age was brought to this State, and had the privilege of freedom which she had enjoyed until about a year since. Her color and appearance was so near that of a white person that it was impossible to distinguish her from among a company of white children. She attended school, and resided in a family at Newport for a short time, when she was brought to this city and lived in a family who were relatives of her mother's owners. She was a regular attendant of the Sabbath School of Grace Church, and much interest was felt in her. She was intelligent and conducted herself with respectability, and only those who knew her origin could discover that she possessed any negro blood. Within a year she was solicited to return to New-Orleans, where, it is said, alluring prospects were held up to her. It is stated that her mother called upon her, and induced her to return with her; while another statement is prevalent that she was abducted by two women representing her mother, and she willingly consented, under the plausible representations held out, to set out for New-Orleans. Her mother had previously become free and had sent the girl her daguerreotype, and people who saw these women affirm that one of them bore a striking resemblance to the picture. The girl returned once more to the South, and was sent to the negro trader, and to be publicly sold as a slave to the highest bidder. The girl herself writes from New-Orleans, under date of Oct. 19: "The officer took me and locked me up in jail; but the officer took pity on me, and put me in there to safe keeping, because, if they had carried me to the trader's yard, my mother would not see me again." Contradictory statements are given as to how the poor girl was disposed of after this point in her history. After being free, married a half-breed Spaniard of depraved character; and it is a current statement that the girl was subsequently persuaded, and placed in a position to become as depraved as those about her.

Office hours from 1 to 2, and 7 to 9 evenings, at Dr. D.'s residence, No. 49 Fifth-street. At all other hours Dr. D. is at his private hospital, where exclusive attention and the purest air in the City, with separate nurses, are provided for those who require the most serious operations of prolonged dietetic treatment, unattainable at their own homes or at hotels.

Friday, Nov. 11—P. M.

There was a fair demand for Stocks at both sessions of the Stock Exchange to-day, and the actual sales were at better prices than on Thursday. At the same time, the temper of the majority of the Board is against the rise, and the market to-day was made to close at each Board rather weaker than the printed sales. Taking the New-York Central as the barometer of the Share list, the cash sales in the morning were at 80⅛ ⅌ cent. As the orders being filled, the price fell back to 80 ⅌ cent. In the afternoon the cash sales were again at 80⅛, after which 79⅞@80 ⅌ cent. was made the closing quotation. There was a cash demand for Rock Island at the early Board, at 63 ⅌ cent., with buyer's options at 63⅛, and in the afternoon 63⅛ cash and 63⅜ buyer's option, after which 63⅛@63 ⅌ cent. was called the last quotation. Galena and Chicago sold at the last price of Thursday; Michigan Central advanced ⅛@¼ ⅌ cent.; Southern Guaranteed went up to 18, and Toledo again brought 29⅞, buyer 60 days. There was a demand for Illinois Central at 63½@¾ ⅌ cent., and the Bonds advanced to 85@85½ ⅌ cent. The Michigan Central Bonds also advanced to 86⅞, and for New-York Central Six ⅌ Cents 91½ ⅌ cent. was paid and bid for more. The Erie Shares and Bonds steady, without actual business. Hudson River and Harlem both stiffer than yesterday, and the Third mortgage of Hudson in demand again at 80@¼ cash and 80½ buyer 60 days. The State Stocks were ⅛@½ higher on Missouris, Tennessees and Virginias. Panama Shares rose rapidly to 124½, and for Pacific Mail there was a good demand at a rise of 1@1½ ⅌ cent. The general market was called dull after the adjournment of the Board in the afternoon. The latest European news to Wednesday, Nov. 2, telegraphed from Cape Race this morning, was favorably construed, and the early dealings in Stocks improved under its influence and the largely improved receipts of the Railways reported from three or four of the Western lines for the first week in November. But, as remarked above, the speculative members of the Exchange seem to be generally unprepared for the better prices, and after the moderate amount of orders which appear at the Board are filled, lower quotations are made on the Street. In reference to the Railway traffic the first week in November, we have the following semi-official reports:

	1859.	1858.	Increase.
Chicago and Rock Island	$93,775	$76,600	$14,675
Galena and Chicago	44,567	26,417	18,150
M. Southern & N. Indiana	48,163	37,429	10,714
Michigan Central	44,629	37,879	7,750
Cleveland and Toledo	16,977	14,927	2,050
Illinois Central	63,007	35,589	27,418

We learn from the Receiver of the New-York and Erie, and through well-advised parties from Albany from the New-York Central, that both these trunk lines are doing a large traffic thus far in November, particularly in eastward-bound produce freights, the charges on which are gradually improving as the Winter season approaches.

In Money rates we learn of no changes to-day. The supply at Bank and from outside lenders continues very heavy. The export movement to Bremen by the steamship Arago to-morrow will be about $750,000, according to the engagements at the ship's office late this afternoon. The supply of Exchange is good at 110@110¼ on London, and 5.15 14¼@5.15 13¼ on Paris, from the Bankers, and 109¼@¾ on London for Southern Bank bills.

The business on the New-York Canals this week, towards tide-water, has slightly increased in Wheat, but is still moderate in Flour and Ir-[illegible] for the years 1859 and 1858 have been:

	Flour.	Wheat.	Corn.
1859	1,641,400	1,176,800	4,352,600
1858	882,200	1,056,000	2,670,500
Decrease	1,059,200	879,200	2,682,400

By reducing the Wheat to Flour, the quantity of the latter left at this date this year, compared with the corresponding period of last year, shows a falling off of 1,964,720 bbls. Flour.

The October traffic on the Baltimore and Ohio Road is reported at at $416,879; the main item showing an increase of $22,940 over last season.

The receipts of the Norwich and Worcester Railroad for the month of October were as follows:

October, 1859	$31,811 69
October, 1858	27,210 04
Gain in 1859	$4,601 65

The receipts for ten months of 1859-59 were:

1859—Jan. 1 to Oct. 31	$291,978 79
1858—Jan. 1 to Oct. 31	256,092 10
Gain in ten months of 1859	$35,886 69

Some uneasiness was expressed to-day for the safety of the United States Mail steamer North Star, of the Vanderbilt California line which left here in company with the North Atlantic steamer Atlantic on the 20th of October, and had not arrived at Aspinwall when the latter left on her return voyage. The rise in the Pacific shares this afternoon was attributed, in part, to the possible misfortune to the Vanderbilt Mail line, as the November dividend on the Pacific stock is still in much doubt, with a rumor to the effect that the Executive management and some of the Directors are more ambitious of beating down Vanderbilt with the money which they have in hand, than to conciliating their 700 or 800 shareholders by maintaining regular or even moderate dividends. This turn in the affairs of the Company would not be without precedent. When Mr. Aspinwall was at the head of the concern, in 1853, he resolved to haul down the Vanderbilt-Nicaragua opposition at the cost of two or three years' dividends and such cost was actually incurred, while the price of the stock landed at about 50 ⅌ cent. When the Collins boats were recently purchased to prosecute a similar competition, we took the liberty of intimating—at the risk of some offence to our good friends at the corner of Wall and Water streets—that the old story was in danger of repetition; though we had no fears at the time that the very first Dividend-day, after this movement, would be passed on the plea that the money of the Company ought to be reserved, and if need be spent to fight Vanderbilt! At the same time we advise no shareholder to sell out on mere suspicion that his dividends are to be stopped. There is no telling how soon or how often the gentlemen in charge of the Company may change their minds.

FOREIGN LIQUORS—The advanced prices claimed by holders, especially for Brandies, have had the effect of restricting operations.

GRAIN—Wheat has been actively inquired for, and prices have favored sellers. Speculators have been the principal purchasers. We have heard of sales of 64,500 bushels, including good white Canada on private terms; good to prime white Michigan, at $1 47@$1 50; very good Canada Club, at $1 14½; common to very choice Milwaukee Club, at $1 14@$1 17, and prime white Kentucky, at $1 50 ⅌ bush. Mixed Western is out of market, and is entirely nominal. Rye is in demand at somewhat firmer prices; sales 5,000 bushels, at 83c.@86c., ⅌ bushel. Barley has been purchased to the extent of 26,500 bushels, at 58c. for good Canada East, 63c. (reported) for Canada West, and 78c. in part, for State, ⅌ bushel. Cheesbro notices the weekly business in the principal kinds of Breadstuffs as follows: "During most of the week an active demand has prevailed for low and medium brands of State and Western Flour. The inquiry has been mainly from the regular Eastern and local trade. Speculators have likewise been purchasing rather freely, especially of Extra State. The supply of this description has not been remarkably extensive. Shippers have been [illegible]
